U18 curling championship host committee donates $20K to local projects

By Ashleigh Viveiros

An outpouring of community support made the 2023 Asham U18 Men's and Women's Curling Championship hosted by the Altona Curling Club Dec. 27-31 a huge success.

Now, the event's organizers are saying thanks by giving back.

The championship posted a profit of over $20,000, making it one of the most profitable years in the history of the event, organizing committee co-chair Quinn Hildebrand shared last week.

"We were hopeful for $12,000," she said, noting it's usually the corporate sponsorships that make or break an event like this.

The Altona business community came through in a big way on that front, but so too did local curling fans.

"The numbers turned out so big because we had great attendance of spectators," Hildebrand said. "And we had probably $5,000 more in corporate sponsorships than what we had anticipated."

The fact there were several teams from across the Pembina Valley certainly helped draw big crowds—there was an average of 120 spectators per draw throughout the five days of curling.

"I think that flair of all the local teams really made the difference," Hildebrand said. "Our highest attendance was when Wahl [from Altona] played Hayward, and Hayward's from Carman. We were pushing 200 people in the building that night."

The fact the week was so profitable means several community funds and projects are reaping the benefits.

The Curtis Klassen Memorial Fund, a local charity that funds local youth sport, is receiving $2,000.

"The Curtis Klassen fund has supported the curling club in the past and I think will probably continue to do so," Hildebrand said, noting a few years ago the fund helped purchase new equipment for local junior curlers. This is their chance to repay the favour. "They're a very worthy cause, whether they're giving back to the curling club or another youth sport."

The Altona Curling Club Junior Legacy Fund receives $5,000. This fund helps curlers with the costs associated with competing and training outside the area.

"The fund was established in 2018 after we hosted the Canola U21s and it's kind of sat a little bit dormant through COVID, but we're hoping to breath some new life into it and get some juniors travelling a little bit more," Hildebrand explained. "It's also a fund we can use as a junior program to buy more equipment and keep the pricing low for our athletes."

Finally, the Altona Curling Club itself is getting $3,000 to pay off their new on-ice camera system and another $10,200.37 to be used for future improvements.

On behalf of the host committee, Hildebrand sends thanks out to everyone who supported the event, including sponsors, volunteers, and fans.

"It was great to see the building full ... it was just a great, positive five days of curling."

Three more years of Youth in Philanthropy at W.C. Miller

By Ashleigh Viveiros

W.C. Miller Collegiate and the Altona Community Foundation (ACF) will be teaming up for the Youth In Philanthropy program for another three years.

Members of the Altona high school's student council met recently with ACF committee member Cheryl Dueck to sign an agreement extending the partnership, which sees the foundation match what the kids are able to fundraise each school year (up to a max of $3,500) for YIP grants. The students then grant out the full amount to worthy local projects.

YIP has been up and running at the school for over a decade (starting up with support from the Thomas Sill Foundation), and it remains an important part of the foundation's outreach efforts.

"It's all about educating youth about philanthropy," Dueck says. "Getting them involved, getting them thinking about it—how do you give back to your community?"

In the past, YIP was a separate extra-curricular group at the school, but in recent pandemic years it's been overseen by the student council.

"Our whole student council does the YIP thing altogether," explains Gr. 11 student Madison Gerbrandt. "It's a real team effort."

So far this school year the students have raised funds by running a bake sale and a school clothing sale, selling roses and chocolates for Valentine's Day, and setting up a donut stand at Aces games. They'll also be selling snacks at the school drama production of Clue next week.

Pacey Wall is 2023's "Champion Child"

Winkler youth named ambassador for Children's Hospital Fdn. of Manitoba

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The Children's Hospital Foundation of Manitoba has named Winkler's own Pacey Wall as its 2023 Champion Child.

Since the age of three, Wall has spent countless days at the Children's Hospital in Winnipeg as medical staff grappled with diagnosing and treating the failure of his intestinal system.

Despite 34 surgeries, including having his colon removed and a colostomy placed, Wall, now nine years old, has retained a big smile and an optimistic outlook on life that makes him the perfect ambassador for the hospital and its fundraising efforts.

"This is a very exciting day when we come together as a community and celebrate the children throughout our province who triumph over health adversity," said Stefano Grande president and CEO of the Children's Hospital Foundation of Manitoba in introducing Wall as this year's spokesperson.

"Our Children's Hospital relies on donations from philanthropic families and corporations and people," he said. "No matter their illness or injuries, having champion children who share their personal stories, their journey, to help raise awareness of the Children's Hospital is so important to continue to advance child health and child health research in our province."

The Children's Hospital at Health Sciences Centre treats over 130,000 children annually. For the next year, Wall is going to be their voice.

It's a big job, but he feels he's up to the challenge.

"I am so thankful for Children's Hospital because the teams there saved my life," Wall said to a crowd of friends, family, and supporters at the Winkler Centennial Arena Friday morning. "The surgeons who have cut me open a lot of times are now all my friends.

"My team of surgeons and doctors have given me many tools to help get nutrition into my body and help me be able to get home with my parents and sisters," he shared, explaining the array of tubes that have been inserted into his body to help keep him alive.

Wall is not able to process regular food, but he doesn't let that stop him from enjoying favourites such as pizza.

"The taste of food is pretty awesome, so even though I can't swallow it because I'd be rushed back to Children's Hospital if I did, I have learned to sham feed. This means I chew and taste food but then I spit it out instead of swallowing.

“Because of all your donations, I get to have a better future”

“My parents now have to buy even more groceries because I love to try everything but never get full!”

Being the Champion Child for 2023 gives Wall the chance to give back to the hospital that has done so much for him and his family.

“Because of all this here at Children’s Hospital, today I’m able to be home with my sisters, go to school with my friends, and do things I love like swimming, hockey and boxing classes,” he said.

“I get to live my life to the fullest, and I plan to taste everything at least once. I am thankful for everyone who works at Children’s Hospital and the Children’s Hospital Foundation who helped support the emergency department that I have needed and purchase medical supplies like the surgical tools that helped me.

“I am thankful for everyone, for all of you donors and volunteers who help the foundation,” Wall stressed. “Because of all your donations, I get to have a better future.”

Wall will spend the rest of this year sharing his story at public events and being the face of the foundation’s fundraising campaign.

He and his family will also get to go to Walt Disney World in Florida with other Champion Children from across Canada—a fact Wall gleefully surprised his three sisters with at Friday’s launch event.

Also on hand for the celebration were representatives from Walmart Canada, which has been involved in supporting the Children’s Miracle Network since 1994.

“Last year, thanks to what I like to call the trifecta, which is the inspiration of our Champion Child and the Children’s Hospital Foundation, our amazing Walmart associates who work tirelessly to achieve our goals, and the incredible generosity of Manitobans, Walmart Manitoba reached a record-breaking $635,000 raised for the Children’s Miracle Network Foundation of Manitoba,” shared Pamela Walker, who spearheads charitable efforts on behalf of Manitoba’s Walmart stores.

“This year, with Pacey as the inspiration, the sky’s going to be the limit for us. And we are going to raise as much as we can.”

Morden chamber rethinking its annual event schedule

By Lorne Stelmach

The Morden and District Chamber of Commerce is reassessing what all it wants to offer as annual events and programs moving forward.

Board members feel post-pandemic is a good time to do a review and perhaps come up with some new ideas.

“We completed our strategic planning for the next three years, and as part of that planning exercise we are going to do an event review,” noted executive director Clare Agnew. “We want to make sure that the events that we’re offering the community have value for the businesses as well as the public.”

The chamber recently opted not to move forward with the annual Home and Life Show in March.

There may be an opportunity for the show or something similar that showcases local goods and services to be revived in the future, Agnew said.

“We’re going to review that in the future just to ensure that it’s something that the business community would still like us to co-ordinate.”

Other events being considered for the year ahead include a community-wide sale and promotional event, perhaps in mid-June.

Agnew stressed they are approaching their planning with an open mind.

“If any businesses or people in the community have ideas for new events or activities in our community, we welcome their suggestions.”

Polar Plunge moves to Lake Minnewasta this year

By Lorne Stelmach

People will once again be “freezing in’ for a reason” as the Polar Plunge fundraiser returns in support of Special Olympics Manitoba.

After a few years of virtual events, organizers are excited to be returning to an in-person plunge this year, though it will be done differently from past events.

The 2023 Polar Plunge in Morden takes place on Saturday, March 18 at 2 p.m. in conjunction with the Morden fire department’s pond hockey tournament at Lake Minnewasta

So, yes, anyone game enough to take the plunge will be testing out the chilly waters of the lake this year instead of a giant tank of water.

The plan is to have the plunge site somewhere near where the dock is usually located, but it will be dependent on the conditions.

“The plan right now, if the weather co-operates, is to have a hole in the lake and do it into the lake water,” said Morden Police Sgt. Scott

Edwards, who spearheads the event. “So it’s a little different from what we have done in the past ... but if we think it’s unsafe then we still have other options with our tank.”

Participants can register to take the plunge and collect pledges as an individual or a team. Details are available at plungemanitoba.com.

The Polar Plunge has proven quite a popular event for participants and spectators alike over the years.

“Our first year was probably the biggest. I think we had close to 50 people, and then our last few years we were probably around 30,” Edwards noted. “Our last in-person event reached $100,000 raised through five events.

“We’re excited to get the in-person event back, and we hope we’ll have a lot of people interested who have taken part in the past but also people who maybe haven’t but want to be part of a cool event,” he said. “The goal is to always try to make it bigger and better.”

Supporters of Special Olympics will be taking the Polar Plunge once again this year, though this time the event takes place at—and in—Lake Minnewasta, weather allowing.

OUR SISTER PUBLICATIONS

Harry Potter and the repeating of history

When I moved to Morden 18 years ago I was freshly graduated from seminary with my Master of Divinity degree and ready for my new career in ministry.

In the midst of the busyness of moving we were reading Harry Potter and the Half Blood Prince, which had just been published. We were staunchly a Harry Potter family and thoroughly entrenched in the wizarding world created by J.K. Rowling.

It wasn't long after I arrived however when I found myself embroiled in my first ministry crisis. A congregant had complained to the senior pastor that my reading the series was inappropriate and set a bad example.

This had never occurred to me. I always felt the stories belonged in the categories of allegory and fantasy. Nevertheless I was tasked with defending my choice and had to dig into numerous books and articles from varying Christian and non-Christian perspectives and present a defence, both verbal and written, to my senior pastor.

The whole thing was unnerving for me. Coming from Toronto, where I had lived for three years while completing my degree at Tyndale Seminary, the idea of Harry Potter being anti-Christian and evil had NEVER come up. Not once. We were focused on the serious tasks of hermeneutics and Biblical literary criticism. As far as I and others were concerned, Rowling landed in the same camp as Tolkien and C.S. Lewis—two of her significant influences. I was not prepared for the culture shock I encountered when I moved here.

Now here we are almost two decades later and I have continued to be a wildly enthusiastic Harry Potter fan, having consumed enormous quantities of the wizarding world in various ways.

Ironically, Rowling, the wizarding world, and its fans have come under attack again, but not for faith-based reasons. These days the controversy around Rowling and her works have to do with her increasingly transphobic views.

It all started around 2020 when she tweeted out an acerbic comment critical of an article for its gender nuanced headline. Very quickly Rowling was attacked for being insensitive to the transgender community. In response, Rowling published an essay which cemented her position as a Trans Exclusionary Radical Feminist (TERF), a term for feminists who do not view transwomen as women.

Famous Canadian author Margaret Atwood retweeted an article that was deemed anti-trans for asking the question "Why Can't we Say 'Woman' Anymore?" which has led many to wonder about her own views of the transgender community. Atwood has since remained relatively quiet, seeking to avoid fanning the flames and staunchly, somewhat combatively, avoids questions related to transgender issues.

Unlike Atwood and other famous people who have stepped into this discussion, Rowling has stubbornly dug in her heels and actively seems to enjoy baiting and sarcastically responding to the transgender community's concerns on Twitter and by doing so demonstrates a callous disregard for their feelings and the pain of a community that has been tormented for a very long time.

Now, in this ever growing conflict, there are many who accuse anyone who enjoys Rowling's work of being transphobic because she earns royalties off the sales.

Sigh. I just wanted to just enjoy the wizarding world. It is odd to me that

Courage for our daily life

Do you ever lack courage? Recently I was thinking about the factors that can cause us to experience fear.

Fear and the related emotional conditions can bind and hinder us from making constructive and positive decisions affecting our own well-being and those closest to us. A healthy response to fear includes re-discovering hope and finding courage for the situation we find ourselves in.

We cannot manufacture hope or courage within us, though some may try. Courage needs to have an anchor, a core understanding and belief that points us to a greater truth beyond the facts of our immediate situations.

When my father was coaching me as a young boy about how to ride a bicycle, I told him that I could not do it. I cannot tell you what I was specifically afraid of but I could not see how it would be possible.

By Randy Smart

The facts were that I was sitting on the bicycle. My father was keeping it balanced and prepared to provide support as I moved forward. I had tears and protested that I could not do this. My father gave me a gentle motion forward and told me to peddle. I started to peddle and make progress. I was surprised. I looked back to see my father and forgot to keep peddling. I fell, but now I had begun to realize that when I acted on the things my father had told me I could ride the bike.

On many occasions the word delivered to God's people, as recorded in the Bible, was "fear not" or "Do not be afraid." There are many examples in the Old and New Testament. The instruction and encouragement to not be ruled by fear was based on the fact that there was a reason for hope and courage in the midst of unexpected and challenging moments. That reason is God himself, his nature and his perfect plans. He invites us to trust him for every part of our journey.

God does not want us to be ruled by fear. A simple children's song which was taught in our home was based on Psalm 56:3,4. "When I am afraid, I will trust in you. In God I trust; I will not be afraid."

The writer of the Psalm is thought to be David and he was in a situation of personal concern about his safety.

When we look to the Lord God, He can give us courage for the situations we face today. You may also need to talk to others who share your worldview and will listen with compassion and stand with you. Renewed courage can lead us to better questions, thoughtful actions and a more certain path. Jesus said "Do not let your hearts be troubled. Trust in God; Trust also in me."

When we are tempted to look back and quit peddling, God encourages us to personally trust and listen to him, look ahead and keep going.

Randy Smart has been a pastor in Southern Manitoba since 1979.

when I first started enjoying it I was having to navigate the hate and opinions of one group concerned from a theological perspective. Now I am navigating a far different group over Rowling's transphobia.

Don't get me wrong: this is not a "poor me" column. I cannot comprehend the struggle and pain of the transgender community as a cisgender straight male. My journey has not been their journey.

But as a writer and poet, I have often said that I believe once an artist releases their art to the world it no longer belongs to them. I can enjoy Wagner's music divorced from his antisemitism (I don't) and read and value Shakespeare despite the racist caricature of Shylock in The Merchant of Venice.

Can I not enjoy the work of Margaret Atwood and JK Rowling despite their problematic (perhaps naïve, certainly hurtful) perspectives on the transgender community without being considered transphobic myself?

Maybe. Maybe not. We're right smack in the middle of the eddies and undertows of an evolving narrative on the subject. Signs should be posted telling people to swim with caution lest they be pulled out to sea and drowned.

Once thing is certain: I never in my life imagined that 18 years after seeking to navigate anti-Rowling sentiment from one community I would come full circle and find myself trying to navigate similar feelings from a wildly different community ... but here we are.

New tool to be released to track local water movement

By Lorne Stelmach

A new technological tool that will soon be available online is expected to serve as a valuable resource for farmers and land managers in the region.

The high-tech modelling project involving the Pembina Valley Watershed District and Manitoba Forage and Grassland Association (MFGA) will have the ability to forecast and detail water resources and water movement in the Pembina River valley.

It is supported by funding of up to $152,250 provided by Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada's AgriRisk Initiatives Research and Development stream via the Canadian Agricultural Partnership.

The project is being developed with Aquanty, a software firm from Waterloo, Ontario, that is constructing a high-resolution HydroGeoSphere (HGS) simulation model encompassing the full area of the watershed district.

It will provide a means to forecast

A new tool is being released this spring to help farmers and land owners better track water movement in the Pembina River valley. Such a tool would have been of great benefit heading into the major flooding of last spring, says PVWD manager Ryan Sheffield.

water resources such as soil moisture, groundwater, and surface water flow, and farmers, land managers and decision-makers will be able to access it via a portal at MFGA.net.

"It's a very sophisticated model. It's kind of cutting edge technology that hasn't really been done here before. It was developed in Canada," said watershed district manager Ryan Sheffield.

"The ability to access this tool will be a valuable asset to have on so many levels, from farming to wetland conservation to infrastructure decisions," he suggested. "From a planning perspective, once we all get up to speed on what the tool can exactly do and tell us, we will have access to a database around water movement and water resources that we have never had before."

Sheffield sees this as being especially vital for the Pembina Valley watershed, as it covers about 7,500 sq km of landscape that includes both the Pembina and Plum watersheds.

This user-friendly forecasting tool will enable agricultural producers, communities and conservation planners to look at key factors such as what moisture is in the soil as well as satellite imagery down to the field level, and he sees it as enhancing both short-term and long-term decision making.

Sheffield looks forward to seeing how producers will be able to make use of it. The tool will offer the options of getting seven or 32-day forecasts, so it could impact how and when they decide to seed their crops, for example.

"It will be interesting to see how a farmer is going to respond to a predicted water condition could affect a multitude of practices on their farm," said Sheffield. "Even with the watershed district, we're often building water retention projects ... and if there was to be a high stream flow at a certain water body, we might change our practices and work someplace else."

Sheffield noted there will be some training sessions available online soon in advance of its rollout.

"The plan is to have this available to farmers approximately by the end of March and to be used for this upcoming growing season."

He noted how something like this would have been a real benefit especially with last year's flooding in the region, as well as the drought the year before.

"Unpredictable weather conditions and then the soil and water conditions can have a huge effect on farmers and their decisions on the land," said Sheffield.

"The last two years are perfect examples of how having the ability to predict soil and water conditions and surface flow conditions, whether it's flooding or drought, is important," he said. "I can only assume farmers would find that information pretty valuable after having gone through the last two growing seasons."

The Pembina Valley Watershed District project will represent the second major water forecasting platform for the MFGA, as it also has a concurrent water forecasting tool project underway in the Assiniboine River Basin that is also on track for completion and launch before the end of March 2023.

"Now that we are close to completing this powerful water decision-support tool in the Pembina Valley watershed, we will work closely with the watershed district to ensure all audiences are aware of the tool, with those that want to learn more to have the chance to test it and provide key feedback before we launch publicly," said Lawrence Knockaert, MFGA chair and a dairy farmer from Bruxelles. "We want to ensure farmers and stakeholders will be able to use it to the best of their ability."

Caron throws hat in the ring for nomination

By Lori Penner

Rejeanne Caron has announced she is seeking the nomination to be the next Conservative Party candidate for the riding of Portage-Lisgar.

The Oak Bluff resident has served as a police officer with the Winnipeg Police Service for the past 29 years.

Seeing firsthand many harsh realities has deeply affected her and sparked her advocacy on Indigenous, social, and political matters.

"In my policing career, I've seen a lot of injustice, pain, and suffering," Caron says. "I want to take my experience as a mother, wife and police officer and be a strong voice for all Canadians and residents in the riding of Portage Lisgar."

Caron has worked with many people from all walks of life, organizations, not-for-profit organizations, shelters, businesses, and all levels of government.

She has participated on a steering committee of 34 community and government leaders to develop a strategy to end gender-based homelessness in Manitoba.

Caron's political platform includes affordability, with a goal to make food, heating, housing, and goods more affordable and bring hope and prosperity back to Canadians.

She also wants to end the practice of releasing violent, repeat and unrehabilitated offenders in our communities, and target organized crime groups/persons who import, produce or distribute harmful, illegal drugs.

Caron says no to Bill C-21, amendments or bans to firearms, and instead wants to target violent criminals, gangs, and drug dealers who import or use firearms in the commission of an offence.

"I plan to support law-abiding firearms owners, farmers, sport shooters and Indigenous communities, for they are not the problem."

She is also an advocate for quality health care in Canada, including immediate access to treatment and recovery for methamphetamine and opioid addiction.

"So many are suffering," Caron said. "I support more resources to help those suffering from mental health."

Caron believes Canadian farmers are global leaders in sustainable quality farming and the solution to food insecurity worldwide.

"I will stand up for our farmers, and I support that Canada can be a self-sufficient nation," she said. "We need to stop taxing fuel and fertilizers that farmers utilize and bring back production to Canada. I will fight to ensure our farmers can supply Canadian families, and our allies, with a sustainable, consistent source of agricultural products."

Protecting Canada's fundamental freedoms is also important to Caron.

"I say no to forced government propaganda and censorship. Trudeau is attempting to censor what you can see and say online, making it difficult to hold our government accountable. I do not support Bill-C11."

of Canada nomination in Portage-Lisgar.

Okello grew up in Kenya and immigrated to Canada in 2009. He spent several years in Toronto before moving to his wife's hometown of Winkler, where they live today with their two kids.

Okello works as a civil designer with Valley Fiber, teaches business at Red River College Polytechnic, and acts as an asset management consultant for local municipalities.

He has a business background in both the manufacturing and agriculture industries, a bachelor's degree in business, and a master's degree in technology.

Okello also studied philosophy at the post-secondary level, and it's there he says his interest in politics began.

"That is where the political side of it came in," he says. "I've been following Canadian politics keenly since 2012."

While he's new to the political sphere, he feels his professional experiences make him a strong candidate for the role of MP.

"Working with municipalities has given me a lot of insight in terms of infrastructure and how it ties into economic development," he says, stressing the importance of spreading the costs of major improvement projects for things like roads, water, and wastewater treatment between multiple levels of government.

These projects retain and draw people to the area and open doors for local manufacturers and businesses to grow and thrive, Okello says.

"If I were to get this nomination, one thing that I think I could do well is uniting different levels of government."

While improving infrastructure and fostering economic development is a passion of his, it's just one part of Okello's campaign.

"Family values and community unity" is another, he says. "Things like compassion, kindness, responsibility, integrity—these are things that in the recent past have been eroded from our culture and I think they are an important part of our existence and they need to be restored if we're going to be a community that is going to thrive together."

He also wants to see businesses that struggled during the pandemic find their way back to success.

"That is something I'm passionate about and I believe I can strongly advocate for," Okello says, adding that he also feels "transparency, accountability, and ethics" are all integral to good governance. "Taxpayers need to have a responsible government. A government that is open with their transactions."

In the running alongside Okello is former Morden-Winkler MLA Cameron Friesen, former Elmwood-Transcona MP Lawrence Toet, behind-the-scenes Conservative campaigners Liz Reimer of Morden and Branden Leslie of Portage, Winkler's Don Cruickshank, and Oak Bluff's Rejeanne Caron.

Whoever wins the nomination will represent the Tories in the upcoming by-election caused by MP Candice Bergen stepping down mid-term earlier this month.

No date has been set for either the nomination vote nor the by-election.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers promote literacy

By Lori Penner

In honour of I Love to Read Month, École West Park School in Altona invited two team members of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers to come read to the kids.

This year, the CFL team was asking their fans to “Hit the Books” to encourage literacy. Along with reading their favourite children’s books live on their website, the team also held a contest for 25 Manitoba schools to get a visit from the Bombers.

West Park was one of the lucky winners.

Roughly 200 Grade 4-6 students gathered in the school gym and were spellbound not only by the fact that they were meeting real sports stars, but also by the three hilarious books the two visitors had chosen to read.

Since the two Ontario brothers, Nick and Noah Hallett, were drafted to the team in 2019 and 2020 respectively, they’ve been eager to get to know more of the communities in Manitoba, and Nick says this was a great way to do it.

“We were happy to volunteer for the program,” he says. “We love getting out in other areas and meeting the fans who support us. It makes us happy when we can give something back.”

“We wanted something funny and suitable for their reading level,” he adds, admitting his girlfriend’s mother is a teacher, and knew just which books would peak the kids’ interest.

“I wasn’t a huge fan of reading growing up, and I can see the importance of it now. So I like to encourage that now. I definitely didn’t take the easy route and I think things would have gone smoother if I had been more involved in reading,” Noah says.

Later, after signing autographs, the two athletes headed on to schools in Aubigny and Morris to complete the day.

Principal Derek Sawatzky says the two visitors had a great dynamic.

“You could tell they really took this task seriously and enjoyed themselves.

“I’m sure the opportunity to come out to rural Manitoba doesn’t happen very often for these guys,” he adds. “They did a fantastic job, read some really funny books, and kept the kids really engaged all the time. It’s special to have someone famous take an interest like that. It might just encourage a kid who doesn’t really like books to give reading a try.”

Whodunit?

You won’t know until the end when you see W.C. Miller Collegiate’s production of Clue.

Loosely based on the classic board game that was brought to life in a 1985 movie, the play focuses on six guests who are invited to a dinner party at a remote mansion, thrown by an anonymous host.

They are given aliases—Colonel Mustard, Mrs. White, Mr. Green, and so on—and discouraged from revealing personal information, though it is soon discovered they all have fallen victim to the same blackmailer: their host.

Each is presented with a weapon and an option: pay their extortionist double or kill the innocent butler.

What follows is a madcap, slapstick evening full of murder, mystery, and laughs as they seek to puzzle the culprit amongst criminals.

The drama is directed by teachers Laura Thiessen and Sarah Gilbert and is the first performance that the school has been able to present since the pandemic.

“It’s so exciting to be able to do this again,” Thiessen says. “When we brought up the idea last fall, we had a huge response for auditions from the students. When they heard it was a murder mystery, they were really excited to be a part of it.”

The cast of 15 is made up of Grade 11 and 12 students.

“Preference was given to those students because these two grades haven’t had the opportunity to participate in a drama because of the pandemic,” Thiessen says. “We’ve told the students that next year’s performance will have a bigger cast, so we can include all grades.”

They didn’t discuss their drama choice with admin from other schools, so Thiessen says it’s interesting that every high school in the division is also performing Clue this year.

“We just happened to be the first,” Thiessen says.

The play is set in the 1950s during the McCarthy era, so there’s a bit of an educational piece, too. But that doesn’t feature too large, Thiessen says.

“It was a challenge to outfit all six rooms—the conservatory, lounge, library, kitchen, study and dining room—with furniture and props to match the era.”

Another challenge was teaching the students some of the slapstick moves that are such a huge part of the performance.

“Falling down and making it look natural. That’s not easy to learn.”

The best part, Thiessen says, was the camaraderie formed between the cast members.

“We’ve become quite tight over the last four months of rehearsing, spending so many hours together every week. It’s really rewarding to build these connections with the kids and between each other.”

Grade 11 student Parker Schmidt plays Mr. Green.

“My character is the quirky, germophobic, anxiety-ridden idiot, so I was basically typecast,” he jokes. “I think the only challenge has been the

A weekend sweep of a doubleheader with Kenora clinched third place for the male U18 Pembina Valley Hawks.

Sebastian Hicks scored 3:49 into overtime Saturday to get the 3-2 victory for the Hawks in the first game of the weekend. Also scoring for the home team were Ryder Wolfe and then Marek Miller with four minutes remaining in regulation to tie the game.

Pembina Valley held a large margin in shots on goal at 57-39, with goalie Raiden LeGall earning the win with 37 saves.

Bryson Yaschyshyn then got the 32-save shutout in the second game Sunday, while Ty Love led the way with a

That put the team's record at 30-7-6 for 66 points, three points ahead of the Winnipeg Wild, who they face in their final regular season game Wednesday night.

The Hawks will then meet the Yellowhead Chiefs, who finish the season sixth place, in the quarter-final. In the two teams' four games against each other this season, Pembina Valley won three times.

Bombers advance

By Ashleigh Viveiros

Morden, Portage, Ste Anne, and Warren were left standing after the South Eastern Manitoba Hockey League's first round of playoffs last week.

The Morden Bombers made short work of the Ile des Chenes Northstars, winning the series three game to zero.

Aside from the 6-1 rout in game one, games two and three were both close affairs, with the Bombers squeaking out a 6-5 OT win in game two last Thursday night and then following it up with a 4-3 victory two nights later.

Regular season champions the Portage Islanders, meanwhile, knocked the Winkler Royals out of the running 3-0 as well, winning game one 9-4, game two 3-1, and game three 7-2.

The Ste Anne-Red River series needed four games for a decision, the Wild having tied things up at a game apiece with a 4-1 game two win. The Aces then won games three and four by a wide margin (6-2 and 8-3) to advance.

Finally, the Warren Mercs won three straight to bump the Notre Dame Hawks out of the running, taking games by scores of 6-1, 2-1 in overtime, and 5-2.

The schedule for the next round of playoffs was not available at press time. Head to semhl.net for updates.

Winkler Flyers stumble against Terriers, Stampeders

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The Winkler Flyers added two losses to their record last week in coming up against the top-ranked Portage Terriers and the Swan Valley Stampeders.

The Terriers, who are in first place in the MGEU East Division, blanked Winkler 3-0 on Saturday.

Malachi Klassen made 25 saves off the 27 shots on net he faced (the Terriers' last goal came on an empty net in the final minutes of the game).

Across the rink, Portage's Bailey Monteith got the shutout with 30 saves.

Playing at home the next night, Winkler didn't fare any better against the Swan Valley Stampeders, who are in third place right now in the league's West Division behind OCN and Waywayseecappo.

Despite firing 47 shots on goal, the Flyers just couldn't crack past the defenses of Swan Valley netminder Kobe Grant.

Winkler goalie Aidan Comeau stopped 25 of the 28 shots he faced.

The Flyers remain in third place in the East Division with a record of 28-13-5-1 for 62 points. Ahead of them are the Terriers (74 points) and the Pistons (68), who have both earned their seat at the playoffs. Well behind the Flyers in fourth and fifth place are the Niverville Nighthawks (46 points) and the Selkirk Steelers (45 points). The Winnipeg teams are in sixth and seventh (the Blues with 39 points and the Freeze with just nine).

Coming up, Winkler hosts the Winnipeg Freeze Wednesday night and then hits the road to play in OCN Friday and Swan Valley on Saturday.

The Flyers then kick off March with a home-and-away against Selkirk that starts in Winkler next week Wednesday night.

End of the road for female Pembina Valley Hawks

By Lorne Stelmach

The 2022-23 season came to an end this past week for the female U18 Pembina Valley Hawks.

The sixth ranked Hawks gave the third place Winnipeg Avros a good test after Pembina Valley had dropped all four regular season matchups, but the Avros still prevailed in three straight.

After edging the Hawks 3-2 in overtime in game one Thursday, Winnipeg completed the sweep with 1-0 and 2-0 shutouts Friday and Sunday.

In game one, the Hawks had taken a 1-0 lead in the second period, but the Avros outscored Pembina Valley 2-1 in the third before collecting the overtime winner.

Jessica Anderson and Mya Pearce scored for the Hawks while Kasia Rakowski made 30 saves off the 33 shots she faced. Her teammates sent 25 the other way.

A lone third period goal was all the Avros needed in game two. Winnipeg's Jenna Goertzen got the 26-save shutout while Kaylee Franz stopped 26 of 27 shots for the Hawks.

It was then a 22-save shutout in game three for Madelyne Sylvestre, while Franz did her best to keep the Hawks in the game in stopping 40 of 42 shots on goal.

Elsewhere, Westman completed a three-game sweep of Central Plains. They await the winner of the quarter-final between Yellowhead and Eastman to see who they'll play in the next round.

The Winnipeg Ice knocked Interlake out of the playoffs in three straight. They'll now face the Avros in the semi-finals.

Twisters clinch a playoff spot

By Lorne Stelmach

A pair of victories last weekend clinched the Pembina Valley Twisters a playoff spot in the MMJHL.

The team downed Transcona 2-1 Friday and then battled Fort Garry Fort Rouge to a 3-2 overtime win on Sunday.

The first win came in dramatic fashion with Slade Sotheran putting home the winning goal with just one second remaining in regulation.

Riley Goertzen had given the Twisters a 1-0 lead in the second period with his team-leading 23rd goal of the season.

Logan Enns made 44 saves as Transcona outshot the Twisters 45-31.

On Sunday, Derek Wiebe got the game-winner 3:32 into overtime.

Also scoring was Goertzen and Caelan Russell. Enns made 31 saves in net as Pembina Valley outshot the Twins 40-31.

The wins improved Pembina Valley's record to 17-13-3-3 for 40 points, which has them in sixth place. They are six ahead of Transcona while just one and three points behind Charleswood and Fort Garry Fort Rouge.

This weekend the Twisters play at home in Morris against Stonewall Friday and then St. James Saturday.

Gimli's Einarson looks for Scotties four-peat

By Ty Dilello

Manitoba is well represented at this week's 2023 Scotties Tournament of Hearts in Kamloops, British Columbia, as the keystone province boasts an all-time high of four teams in the event.

Gimli's Kerri Einarson (Val Sweeting, Shannon Birchard, Briane Harris) enter the Scotties as the betting favourite to win the championship. They will be playing as Team Canada since they've won the three previous Scotties events.

Einarson's team has been Canada's finest over the past five years. They've won everything except the last Olympic Trials. With one more Scotties win this year, the Einarson foursome will tie Nova Scotia's Colleen Jones for the most consecutive Scotties titles in history with four when they won every year from 2001 to 2004.

Jennifer Jones and her rink (Karless Burgess, Mackenzie Zacharias, Emily Zacharias, Lauren Lenentine) out of the St. Vital and Altona Curling Clubs are Team Manitoba and hold a ton of experience as Jones is a six-time champion at the event.

Team Kaitlyn Lawes (Laura Walker, Jocelyn Peterman, Kristin MacCuish, Selena Njegovan) out of the Fort Rouge will be playing as Wild Card #1 as the team ranked highest in Canada that failed to win their provincial playdowns. Finally, Team Meghan Walter (Abby Ackland, Marquette's Sara Oliver, Mackenzie Elias) is entered as Wild Card #3 for their remarkable season on the World Curling Tour.

The other teams that make up the 18-rink field are Alberta's Kayla Skrlík, British Columbia's Clancy Grandy, New Brunswick's Andrea Kelly, Newfoundland and Labrador's Stacie Curtis, Northern Ontario's Krista McCarville, Nova Scotia's Christina Black, Ontario's Rachel Homan, Prince Edward Island's Suzanne Birt, Quebec's Laurie St-Georges, Saskatchewan's Robyn Silvernagle, Northwest Territories' Kerry Galusha, Nunavut's Brigitte MacPhail, Yukon's Hailey Birnie, and Wild Card #2's Casey Scheidegger.

Project preserves the stories of historic village's past

By Lori Penner

When you tour some of the quaint housebarns in the Village of Neuberghthal, you wish those timber walls could talk. Oh, the stories they could tell.

Preserving the stories of the original Mennonite settlers and inhabitants of the nearly century-and-a-half old community is the focus of a new project being launched by the Neuberghthal Heritage Foundation (NHF).

Funded through a grant from the Plett Foundation, the project involves digitally recording conversations with descendants of the original founders of the village, as well as former residents. These recordings will then be stored and transcribed for future reference.

NHF member Susie Fisher says the Plett Foundation supports projects that involve researching the 1870s Mennonites and their descendants. The grant will help the NHF further their own research on Neuberghthal, as well.

"We hired somebody to do oral history interviews with people who have lived in the village in the past," Fisher says. "These are elderly people for the most part, who may not be around much longer. We just want to make sure we have all their stories, so that we can continue to preserve our past, but also find interesting ways to share it. The more we know, the better."

At this point, there are about two dozen individuals on the list of interviewees, and the NHF is looking for more.

"Maybe someone who has connections to the village who finds out about this project will come forward and say, "I have some stories to add" and that would be great," says Fisher. "We'd love to hear from them if they're willing to be interviewed."

The process entails contacting the individual, sitting down with them, and asking them various questions pertaining to their memories of life in the village. The digital and written copies of the conversations will then be sent to the Canadian Mennonite University for their archives, as well as the village's own archives.

The recordings and transcriptions will also be shared with interviewees, giving them a legacy for their own families.

"The questions are pretty broad," Fisher says. "We're interested in stories about their homes, the school, sports, traditions, things like that. Part of the project is looking at the map of the village and recalling what they remember about certain yards and the people who lived there. Really trying to bring up any memories that folks have. Was there floor painting, was there art, were there special community events, what was church like... anything they can remember."

Neuberghthal was founded in 1876 by a group of related Mennonite families immigrating from Russia to the open plains of southern Manitoba.

The village was designated as a national historic site in 1989 because of its unique layout and architectural significance.

NHF member Ray Hamm conducted and recorded a number of interviews with residents at the time.

"Many of those conversations are in Low German," Fisher says. "The plan is to digitize and transcribe those in the future, as well."

Jonathan Hildebrand will be conducting these new interviews.

Hildebrand is a PhD student in history at the University of Manitoba, where his research focuses on the creeks and waterways of the West Reserve, Mennonite settlement, and use along the creeks, and Mennonite-Indigenous interactions in the area.

While he currently lives in Winnipeg, he grew up in Altona and says he's excited to be involved with the NHF project.

"Given my interest in history, I've been finding it a valuable experience in learning more about the region. I've also enjoyed the project because it's helped me connect more strongly with my own roots—not just through learning about the history, but through meeting and the folks being interviewed, who all have such a wealth of experience and knowledge.

"Projects like this are important for preserving the local history and knowledge of a place, at a different level than what we might read in textbooks."

Fisher says according to the grant, they've been allotted two years to complete the project, but Hildebrand hopes to finish it this year.

"This project aligns perfectly with his knowledge and interests, and we're happy to have Jonathan be a part of keeping Neuberghthal's history alive for generations to come."

OBITUARY

Lillian Joyce Hildebrand (nee Gibson)
1932 – 2023

With sadness we announce the peaceful passing of Lillian Hildebrand aged 90 years, of Morden, MB. and formerly of the 1-6 District on Monday, February 13, 2023 at Boundary Trails Health Centre.

Lillian was born June 23, 1932 in Morden. After completing high school at Maple Leaf Collegiate, Lillian attended Normal School in Winnipeg and began her teaching career. She enjoyed teaching at schools in Winnipeg, Kenora, Thornhill and Lindal. She married Bill Hildebrand January 10, 1959. When they married, she had no experience with farm life – she was a town girl in love. She was athletic, adventurous, courageous, resourceful and approached every new farm chore with a determination to succeed. Mom's years on the Hildebrand farm, (11-1-6NW) alongside Bill and their five children were the best years of her life. Lillian and Bill loved each other and loved providing for their growing family.

The Lutheran Church was always central to Lillian's life. She served by teaching Sunday school, attending Bible study, contributing to the ladies' aid, and singing in the choir. Bill and Lil moved into Morden in 1983 and Mom worked in the kitchen at the Morden Motor Inn and Morden General Hospital, at the Tupperware factory, and drove the school bus. She was good company and was a faithful friend, always ready to listen and interested in many topics.

She will be lovingly remembered by her four daughters and son: Audrey and Jim Wilson, Mavis and Gerard Brake, Willie Hildebrand-Whalley, Sheila and Jon Paintin and Charlie and Margie Hildebrand; her grandchildren: Angus, Lochlan, Christopher (fiancé, Marianne), Zachary, Parker, Clark, Robyn, Kenzie; her sister, Eleanor Orchard; sisters-in-law, Martha, Sigga and Ann; as well as many nieces and nephews.

She was predeceased by her husband, Bill; son, John (in infancy); parents, Charles (Fredrick) Gibson and Catherine McVicar Jickling; and many other loved ones.

Memorial service was held at 2:00 p.m. on Saturday, February 18, 2023 at Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church in Morden with private family interment at Hillside Cemetery to follow at a later date.

If friends so desire, donations may be made in Lillian's memory to the Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church 144 7th Street Morden, MB R6M 1E2

Alitta Milaine James (nee Fehr)
1960 – 2023

Alitta James passed away peacefully at the age of 62 after a courageous battle of cancer. She was surrounded by loved ones who will continue to honour her legacy of love.

Alitta was born to Jake and Helen Fehr in Winkler, Manitoba on June 21, 1960. She met the love of her life, Rick James, in an Altona youth group and they married at the Altona EMMC on April 8th, 1979. They built a family and a life together as they raised their three kids here in Winkler. Alitta worked as a paralegal in the same law office for 40 years. She retired at the age of 60 to enjoy time with her family and growing tribe of grandkids. Alitta loved well. People who knew her, were loved by her. She treasured her role as a wife, mother, grandmother, sister, aunt and friend. She loved swimming and the water, family holidays, gardening, crafting and sewing. She had an eye for beauty - whether it be in flowers, home decor or finding it in the people around her. As a Grandma she loved to cuddle, make and play play-dough, read books, paint rocks, plant flowers, create car roads and be crafty. Even with the challenges she faced, her ability to Grandma never wavered - she always had the strength to make moments with her grandkids special. Though her past six years weren't easy and she fought many battles, she never complained, always loved and her steady faith in God was an inspiration.

Alitta was predeceased by her parents, Jake and Helen Fehr and is survived by her husband, Rick James, her children, Devin (Janelle) James, Jordan (Rachel) James, Jenilee (Steve) Goertzen, her eight grandchildren, Tianna, Grady, Everly, Mavrick, Beau, Callen, Parker and Charlize and her brothers, Dwight (Maggie) Fehr and Mike (Jamie) Fehr.

Donations may be made in Alitta's memory to Boundary Trails Health Centre Foundation designated to CancerCare.

OBITUARY

Wilfred Kenneth Warkentin
1936 - 2023

It is with great sadness that the family of Wilf Warkentin announces his passing on Sunday, February 12, 2023, at the age of 86; only three short months after the death of his beloved Grace. While Grace was often larger than life, Wilf was quiet and shied away from the limelight. Their very different personalities complemented each other, and they could not imagine life without the other. Wilf was born on May 18, 1936, to Martha and George P. Warkentin in North Battleford, Saskatchewan.

He leaves behind his three children, Randy (Karla), Bonnie (Paddy), Tami (Andy); five grandchildren, Brodie (Rachel), CJ (Lindsay) Marie (Jeremy), David (Emily) and Andrew (Yetunde) and five beautiful great-grandchildren. He met his newest great-granddaughter, Hunter-Grace, and congratulated his grandson, David, on his engagement to Emily, just days before his death. Wilf is survived by two of his sisters, Grace Klassen and Edith Grimes. He is much loved by his and his late spouse, Grace's extended family and by his nieces and nephews and their families.

Wilf and Grace moved to Morden from Winnipeg with their young family in 1967 so Wilf could pursue his passion for cars and sales. He co-founded Garden City Chrysler with Max Friesen and they succeeded in business together for the next 40 years. Wilf and Grace quickly adopted their new home. Within weeks of arriving in Morden, Wilf began volunteering in the community. He is most widely remembered for his unwavering commitment on the Tabor (personal care) Home Board where he served for more than 30 years, including as the Chair of the Board for 14 years. During his time as the Chair, he was the driving force behind the development, fundraising and construction of a new, state of the art, 100-unit personal care home.

In 2015 Wilf was named Morden's Outstanding Volunteer of the Year, in which he was recognized for close to 50 years of volunteer service. He was nominated because of his creation of the Morden Community Handi-Van, a service that provided transportation to disabled residents of Morden. For more than 30 years, Wilf and Max contributed new vehicles for the Handi-Van from their dealership. Wilf was also honoured for his service as a trustee and then Chair of the Western School Division, as a member of the Morden Town Council and as one of the first Chairpersons of the Morden Corn and Apple Festival and of course, for his contributions to the Tabor Home. Above most other things, Wilf loved to golf. He and Grace travelled wherever they could swing a club; to places such as St. Andrews in Scotland, the Canary Islands in Spain, Hawaii, California, Florida and extensively throughout Canada. Wilf and his son-in-law, Andy, were partners at the Minnewasta Golf and Country Club, Tuesday Night Men's League for over 25 years. After Grace's stroke, Wilf devoted himself to her care for three and a half years until her death in November 2022.

Wilf was buried beside Grace at a private family service on February 14, 2023. A memorial service for Wilf will be held at 2:00 p.m. on Friday, March 10, 2023 at Westside Community Church in Morden with a reception to follow.

If you choose, in lieu of flowers, donations may be made in Wilf's name to the Tabor Home in Morden.

The family would like to thank the emergency services in Morden and the medical staff at Boundary Trails Health Centre for their exceptional care in Wilf's final days. We extend a special thanks to Dr. Kevin Convery, Dr. Tanya Borchers, nurse, Denise Darling and the entire Palliative Care Team.

"We've raised around $500 so far," Gerbrandt shares. "We're hoping to get close to $700 this year."

With matching funds from ACF, that will mean the teens could have upwards of $1,400 to grant out this June.

It's the students who decide where the money will go; each year they put a call out for grant applications, which are carefully reviewed by YIP/student council members.

"We want to see what will best benefit our community," Gerbrandt says, noting any community-focused project or program can apply.

Being part of the fundraising efforts so far this year has been a lot of fun for Gerbrandt, who feels the YIP program is an important part of the school.

"I think it's really important because, first of all, we get to help our community. And also it helps students become aware of the needs in our community and what's going on here."

"It's really great to help others in our community and to be a part of the YIP program."

• SUSTAINABLE LIVING

Using natural cleaning products

By Joanne Wiebe,
Altona Community Action Network

Have you ever tried to read the ingredient list on your bottle of bathroom cleaner? Chances are it contains a wide range of chemicals that are incomprehensible to the average person.

This is true for many of the cleaning products on store shelves. These products are often made from harsh chemicals that can cause skin irritation, respiratory, and other health problems.

Many manufacturers of household cleaners do not disclose all ingredients on product labels which makes it difficult for consumers to choose safer products.

According to the Environmental Working Group's guide to healthy cleaners (<https://static.ewg.org/ewg-tip-sheets/EWG-Cleaners-WalletGuide.pdf>), some ingredients to avoid include bleach and quat based, air fresheners, as well as caustic drain cleaners which contain extremely toxic chemicals, as well as artificial "fragrance" chemicals.

Natural cleaning products have become increasingly popular in recent years due to their effectiveness and safety. These products are made from natural ingredients such as baking soda, vinegar, lemon juice, and essential oils, making them a safer and more environmentally friendly alternative to traditional cleaning products.

Replacing the harsh chemicals with natural cleaning products can be safer for you and your family as they can be made from ingredients that are gentle on the skin and do not pose any health risks. Additionally, they are free from harmful chemicals such as bleach and ammonia, making them a safer option for those with children and pets.

Natural cleaning products are also much better for the environment. Traditional cleaning products can have a negative impact on the environment by releasing harmful chemicals into the air and water. Natural cleaning products, on the other hand, are biodegradable and do not harm the environment in the same way. Furthermore, using natural products reduces the need for harsh chemicals to be produced, leading to a decrease in the negative impact on the environment.

Going natural can also be more cost-effective. Many natural products can be made at home using ingredients that are already in your pantry, such as baking soda and vinegar. This can save you money in the long run, as well as reducing waste by eliminating the need for packaging and shipping. Additionally, natural cleaning products are often sold in bulk, which can be more economical than buying small bottles of traditional cleaning products.

Finally, natural cleaning products are often more effective. Many have been proven to be as effective or even more effective than traditional products in cleaning and removing stains. For example, vinegar is an effective natural cleaner for removing mold and mildew, and baking soda is a natural deodorizer that can be used to remove unpleasant odors.

By making the switch to natural cleaning products, you can help protect your health and the environment while still keeping your home clean and fresh.

If you'd like to learn more about Non-Toxic Household Cleaning Products, please join the Altona Community Action Team for a presentation on this topic at the Community Exchange in Altona at 1 p.m. on Saturday, March 4.

ACAN seeks to inspire eco-friendly and sustainable practices in our community through education and action.

Ask the Money Lady

Dear Money Lady: I am planning to buy a home with my new partner, and I have the money for the down payment or more. My boyfriend Mike has no savings but has the income to get the mortgage. I am currently working part-time, but I don't make enough to pay the mortgage payment. We each have adult kids from previous marriages. Can you tell me what is the best thing to do? Maryanne.

Dear Maryanne, I am so glad to share your question with our Canadian readers because this is a common event with older couples, especially those divorced and now wanting to start a new life with someone else. I have seen this before where one partner may be asset rich – meaning they have the savings, but they do not earn much, and the other partner may not have the savings but earn a larger income. When you go into the banks, they are only interested in facilitating the transaction of setting up a new mortgage, however without a clear division of the asset, if you were to split in the future, there are a lot of grey areas. Also, the partner who makes more money most likely would end up paying more towards the monthly expenses which could be a problem over time.

The other reason I would want you to clearly define your new asset together is in the event of a death. What happens if the adult children of the deceased force the sale of the home to capture their inheritance? And, if you were to separate, would you sell the property and split the proceeds equally? What if one partner wants to stay and the other wants to sell? The best solution is a collateral charge. Let me explain why you want this type of product instead of a standard mortgage.

With a collateral charge you can capture 100% of the value of the residence, (I know you don't require that much equity, but stay with me and I will explain why you want it). A collateral charge also has no term or renewal so once you get approved for it you can keep it for the next thirty years if you like, even with a zero balance; always available to you in the future if needed. The other reason I would recommend this product is that you can clearly define the percentage of ownership and if needed, a collateral charge can be split into multiple segments to be used for investments, business loans, helping family, etc., (with most segments being setup as tax write offs on the interest of individual segments).

In your situation Maryanne, I would suggest you split the cost of the purchase 50/50. You put down as much as you can on your 50% ownership and then setup a segment for your remaining amount owing. If you have enough for the full 50% ownership, then I would suggest you put it all down, so you do not have a loan payment. Mike would have a loan segment for the remaining 50% and have a monthly payment that he would be responsible for. Each segment will be labelled with your names and clearly defined; however, title will be registered equally under the full collateral charge. If Maryanne were to put down the full 50%, she could now have the 50% available credit in the equity of the collateral charge should she need this in the future. I would suggest Mike take out separate life and disability insurance on his loan so that if he were to die, the debt would be paid out. Better still, it is best if you both have additional life insurance naming each as beneficiaries. By doing this, you will eliminate a forced sale if one were to die, allowing the surviving partner enough funds to pay out half of the value of the property to their partner's estate and continue living in the property debt free. With the collateral charge now free and clear with no debt, the surviving spouse does not have to worry about qualifying for a future loan and can have access to credit should an emergency arise. Remember, the collateral charge has no term or renewal and is not a mortgage. Once you get it setup you are free to use it as you please, changing segments, paying it off, drawing it down again or leaving it for years with a zero balance. You can even switch it to interest only payments if needed.
