Altona's industrial park expansion taking shape

By Lori Penner

Construction of Altona's expanded industrial park is well underway.

Mayor Harv Schroeder says right now, with nothing but heavy equipment and massive piles of dirt to see, it may be tough for drivers heading past the site along Hwy. 30 to visualize the completed project.

"But it is finally coming together, and we're really excited to get this project going," he says.

For the last few months, crews have been busy preparing the site for the installation of water and sewer lines and road infrastructure. The job also includes installing the necessary lift stations for the future phases.

As of last week, the sewer main is in, and engineer drawings for the lift stations are being approved.

The retention pond was also completed last week. In an announcement on social media, public works manager Clint Derksen explained that these ponds are mandated for developments such as this.

"Rainwater isn't allowed to leave a site post-construction any faster than it did pre-construction."

The pond is about 13 feet deep and is about the width of three or four football fields. It's located on the lowest spot on the parcel of land. While it looks huge right now, Derksen says this is the required size for the whole parcel.

"We are only in Phase 1 now. This is sized for the next two phases as well, so it couldn't be any smaller. It has to take care of all the water that falls on the site, so that it leaves as slow as it did before."

The giant pile of dirt from the retention pond has been stockpiled for future use to bring the lots up to grade level so they will continue to drain long after the businesses are established.

"As big as it looks right now, that still won't get us quite through Phase 2. It looks like a lot of dirt, but we're still gonna run out, once we do get that far."

A VISION FOR FUTURE GROWTH

Altona's original industrial park was established by council over a decade ago with a vision for strong future growth of the community's business district.

"Initially we had Green Valley Equipment and the concrete plant setting up out there, and now, we're thrilled to say, every lot has been spoken for, with a wide variety of businesses and trades," Schroeder says.

Realizing the need for extra industrial lots in the community, town council had a study done in 2019 that resulted in three designs being presented on the future of the park.

Based on this study, they put together a conceptual plan and purchased 117.3 acres of land from Grand West Farms in 2020.

Then the search was on for a construction company to bring the plan to fruition. After a call for bids last year, they ultimately awarded the job to Fast Brothers out of Blumenort for $3.7 million.

Phase 1 is the costliest phase, Schroeder shares, and it's also the busiest.

"Things have been progressing well. Fast Brothers are definitely living up to their name. We're really happy with their work. They're working hard and putting in some very long hours."

The goal, he adds, is to carve out the roads and install the infrastructure system by the end of March.

"And then spring will set in, it'll get messy there, so, as far as I understand, they'll be doing the lift station after spring."

Schroeder says council is encouraged by the interest that's been expressed so far in the available lots in Phase 1. The hope is that this project will draw more businesses to the community, which will lead to more jobs and growth.

Winkler-Stanley launch new immigration program

By Ashleigh Viveiros

After years of discussion and development, the Winkler Stanley Economic Development Corporation (WSEDC) last week launched an immigration initiative designed to address local labour shortages.

The three-year pilot project is a partnership between WSEDC and the Province of Manitoba's Immigration Pathways. It aims to bring up to 100 applicants to Winkler-Stanley in the rest of this year and another 150 in both 2024 and 2025.

What makes this program unique, explained WSEDC business development and immigration officer Mark Sawatzky, is that it will be targeting applicants with job skills that have been shown to be in demand in the two communities through an annual regional labour forecast.

"This is a community-focused approach to connecting economic needs to immigration applicants," he said. "This program allows our economic development office to put forward candidates as we see fit based on a labour forecast and a community review."

Those successful candidates (whose applications will be assessed by a local review committee) will receive a letter of endorsement from the community that will count for a number of points in their Manitoba Provincial Nominee Program (MPNP) application. The more points an applicant has, the greater the likelihood they'll be invited to immigrate to Manitoba.

An actual job offer typically earns an applicant a great deal of points. A letter of recommendation from the new Winkler-Stanley immigration program will hold the same weight.

"When our office creates a letter, it has the same points value as a job offer," Sawatzky said. "This is unique to any community."

WSEDC board vice-president Dennis Harder is excited at the level of input this program gives the community when it comes to immigration.

"For businesses to provide a job offer [in advance] is not always realistic, so we wanted to have a program that replaces that but also allows us to offer support to people that fit our current labour market needs," he said.

It will be a lot of work to conduct an annual labour forecast, Harder noted, but it will paint a much clearer picture of what Winkler-Stanley businesses are actually looking for.

"We are now able to bring people in that fit the whole range of jobs that are needed in this in this region," he said. "Some of the jobs we need are skilled, but they are at different levels than what the province might have recognized we needed."

Polar Plunge raises $10K for Special O

By Lorne Stelmach

The Polar Plunge held Saturday afternoon at Lake Minnewasta raised around $10,000 for Special Olympics Manitoba.

Nearly 30 participants were brave enough to take the leap into the icy water for a good cause.

"We're really happy with the funds raised and the number of people who took part," said organizer Sgt. Scott Edwards of the Morden Police Service and the Manitoba Law Enforcement Torch Run.

"The whole atmosphere of having it at the lake with the pond hockey tournament was neat to see, and I think it worked out well," he added. The Morden fire department hosted its hockey tournament that same day. "The feel of all the people gathered around cheering everyone on was good.

"The weather made it a little easier. It wasn't minus 30 with a wind chill after you hopped out of the water. It was a little more bearable. The water temperature was probably no different than when we jumped in the tank in the past at the Access Event Centre.

"We took as many safety precautions as we could to make sure that everything was safely done," noted Edwards, who also added they were grateful for the support from the fire department, Earl Dyck, James Friesen, Shawn Dias, and Elite Crushing's Levi Wiens for their work to make the event safe on the ice.

Senior centre hosting care options expo April 15

By Ashleigh Viveiros

An event at the Winkler Senior Centre next month aims to equip seniors and their families with a wealth of information to address increasing care needs.

Services for Seniors is teaming up with the Buhler Active Living Centre and the Alzheimer Society of Manitoba to host the Navigating Care Options expo Saturday, April 15.

"As care needs increase, it can be a little complex to understand how things work here in our province," says BALC activity manager Stephanie Dueck.

"We see so many people who are in the midst of it and they're trying to figure it all out," she says, noting the expo aims to get people familiar with the various care options available so that "it's less stressful when the time comes."

The day will include a morning of presentations from representatives of Manitoba's home care services, Salem Home personal care home, and Silver Lining Care, which provides private home care.

Services for Seniors resource coordinator Cathleen Bergen hopes these presentations will help get seniors and their loved ones talking about the kind of care they need and want as they age.

"Hopefully this will open those conversations as to what do I want to see happen for me when my needs increase? And what is the financial aspect of this going to be?"

"It's good at any age to think about the last years of your life and what you want those to look like and familiarize yourself with the process," adds Dueck.

Registration for the 9 a.m. to noon presentations is $10, which includes lunch. Head online to tinyurl.com/care-options-expo or call 204-325-8964 to sign-up. The deadline to do so is April 6.

The expo will also include information booths highlighting a variety of local providers with programs and services aimed at helping people as they age.

Those booths will be open to the presentation participants in the morning and then to the general public for free from noon to 2 p.m.

Dueck and Bergen stress this event is for families across the Pembina Valley, not just in Winkler.

"We're hoping the whole region will take advantage of this information that's available," Dueck says.

Corn & Apple parade returns

By Lorne Stelmach

The Corn and Apple Festival will be back in full this summer with the return of the one main feature that was missing last year.

The parade that has been touted as likely the largest in Manitoba will be part of the festival once again in 2023.

"Last year was the first festival in three years, and it was a huge success.

It was right in line with our record attendance ... by any metric, it was a smashing success," said executive director Tim Hodge. "Of course, the one thing that was a disappointment for us as the organizers and for attendees was that we weren't able to do a parade."

It was a case of simply not having the manpower and resources in place in 2022 to make the parade possible, Hodge said.

"It's a massive undertaking. It takes a lot of volunteer time," he said. "We ran the festival with quite a few less volunteers than normal, so something had to go, and unfortunately it was the parade."

The parade requires upwards of 40 volunteers to pull off and a lot of hours both in advance and the day of.

"It's no small undertaking," Hodge said. "It was almost three kilometres long in 2019. Just finding the area to stage all of the entries before the parade is a challenge."

Ready to take on the challenge this year are new parade co-chairs Tammy Duncan and Tara Ritchie.

"One good way to recruit volunteers is to unfortunately cancel an event that people love, so we were very happy to have Tara and Tammy step up," said Hodge. "They contacted us literally days after the 2022 festival and said they would love to volunteer their time to organize the parade this year, and they've really hit the ground running. So we're all very thrilled to have the parade back"

Planning overall is moving ahead smoothly for the 2023 festival.

"It's the first time since 2019 that we've had a full year to prepare for the festival," Hodge noted. "We're just finishing up a few things, like our entertainment we're finalizing now.

"We so far have a good return in terms of our volunteer committee people, so we're starting in a stronger position than we were last year," he added, noting they are still looking for people to chair the artisan vendors and craft tents as well as the shuttle buses.

"We are still looking for volunteers,"

"IT'S A MASSIVE UNDERTAKING."

"Through this program ... we get to now to influence the [occupation] classifications that are being looked at or considered for approval. That's a huge victory for us."

Manitoba Minister of Labour and Immigration Jon Reyes is confident this program will not only help Winkler-Stanley but could serve as a guide for other communities in the future.

"Part of my role as the minister for immigration is to ensure to streamline immigration, because there are labour needs across this province," he said. "I'm excited that we have this pilot program in place here ... I know it's going to be successful and we're going to want to use this as a template for other municipalities in the province."

Mayor Henry Siemens reflected that Winkler is very much a community built on immigration.

"The growth that we have here comes to a large degree from immigration," he said. "We've had a lot of successes in that. In the last several years we've struggled hard to build a program that was going to continue to build on those successes."

He's pleased to have the RM of Stanley on board with this project. The municipality co-funds WSEDC with the City of Winkler, allowing the agency to hire the necessary staff to pursue this program's creation with provincial officials.

"None of that would have been possible without the RM of Stanley at the table," Siemens said.

"We're very excited to be part of this launch," said Stanley Reeve Ike Friesen.

"We know our businesses, in order for them to grow in our region, we need more immigrants, more people to come to this area," he said. "We're excited to see the new families coming to make this area their home."

Details about the Winkler Stanley Pilot Manitoba Immigration Initiative can be found online at wse.dc.ca.

time during the festival ... we have a volunteer sign-up page on our website."

Love at the end of the rainbow

As a single mother without a lot of friends, my mum would often chat with us like peers to get some semblance of normal human interaction.

On one such occasion when I was about eight, she was sitting at the kitchen table with a coffee and cigarette when she began such a casual conversation:

“You know your uncle is gay?”

I did not.

The uncle in question was my step-father’s identical twin. I continued to listen.

“Gay means he loved men instead of women,” she continued. This did not remotely fluster me; she presented it as if it were the most non-controversial, normal thing in the world, and so I accepted it as such.

“He used to dress in drag,” she said. “Like a woman.”

The conversation got more interesting to me as it went on. I was always a good audience for mum. She would talk and talk and I would listen and occasionally nod.

“He and his friends were all gay and they all dressed like women,” she said. “He was so beautiful. I lived with him and his friends for a while in Toronto and he taught me how to do my makeup properly.”

She smiled as she spoke and for a few moments was looking off in the distance as if remembering.

By Peter Cantelon

“Your uncle is one of the nicest, kindest people I ever met. I always felt safe with him and his friends,” she finished. And that was that. It was the end of the conversation.

This was my introduction to the LGBTQ2S+ community. An uncle who I never met and never would. He moved to the United States and passed away a few years ago.

Since then, more family and friends from the LGBTQ2S+ community have come into my life, and each has enriched it.

I have talked to a lot of people over the years about their perspectives when it comes to this community and one thing has become crystal clear: being in a genuine, loving relationship with a person makes all the difference in the world.

I talked to an Anglican minister and theological scholar who was staunchly against homosexuality until he found out his son was gay. When this happened he dug deeper into his faith and became a leading supporter of the community.

I have talked to other ministers who have gone so far as to suggest the death penalty would not be inappropriate for members of this community should the government choose to implement it.

It is shocking to me how far people will go to suggest their hateful, bigoted language and actions are actually “love” and try to protect it by calling it free speech.

I have had the privilege of being able to attend several Pride events and a couple of drag shows so far and I have never experienced more love, joy, compassion, acceptance, hope and positivity ANYWHERE else than at one of these.

I think this was what my mum was recalling when she talked about my uncle. As a woman who had been subjected to pain in ways that most people could never imagine, her time with my uncle and his friends shone out like a bright beacon in comparison to the drab, judgemental, hurtful world that most often weighed in on her and others.

I would choose this bright, kind, non-judgemental, loving LGBTQ2S+ community over the darkness of people who carry the heavy chains of mockery, derision, hate, and judgement every time.

For those who may be struggling with their identity, feeling isolated,

Petition sent to SCRL board

By Lorne Stelmach

The debate over books with perceived sexually inappropriate content in local libraries continued this week.

A petition featuring 1,796 signatures of residents from across the region came up as part the South Central Regional Library's March 20 board meeting.

Representatives had also wanted to speak to board members at the meeting, but their request was denied.

Nonetheless, a large crowd of supporters were on hand to try to take in the meeting, interspersed with a smaller number of counter protesters showing their support for the library board's previous decision on this matter.

Winkler's Karin Banman made the formal request that she and Christine Ronceray be allowed to address the board to present the petition, which outlines the group's dissatisfaction with the decision to keep sexually explicit books in the SCRL's children's and young adult collections.

In response to the refusal to allow them to speak to the board directly, Banman has sent a letter to Sport, Culture, and Heritage Minister Obby Khan about the situation, citing "deep concerns around a breakdown in the rights of the public to have a voice with our local South Central Regional Library board."

"The public will not stand by and watch as basic, democratic rights erode in our own community," Banman said in the letter, which she provided to the Voice via email. "We will attend this Monday's SCRL public board meeting. We will say what we need to with our presence."

Reached for comment ahead of the meeting, library board chairperson Chad Collins explained "after clarification, Ms. Banman indicated she would like to formally present the information she had already previously supplied in writing. Ms Banman was informed her information would be included in the next board meeting as it was supplied to the board.

"SCRL has had communication from a legal counsel that has indicated they represent a group of concerned citizens of Manitoba," Collins noted. "At this time, the SCRL board has no further comment on the delegation."

Supporters of a petition presented to the South Central Regional Library regarding sexually explicit content in its collection came out to the library's board of directors meeting Monday. The event also drew a few counter protesters showing support of the library's decision not to remove the materials in question.

Banman also declined to comment other than to cite what was stated in the petition, which requests that all "juvenile books in all South Central Regional Libraries that display sexually explicit images, contain sexually explicit content or instruct on sexual touching, be removed from library stacks and from the online library system and that a policy be put in place

FACTS, NOT HYPERBOLE

The following is in response to last week's letter to the editor by Cassandra Schaeffer, citing her concerns about the recent drag brunch in Morden.

Outside of Mrs. Schaeffer offering opinions about an event she was not at, of particular concern were her thoughts on hate speech and current laws trying to restrict it.

Factually incorrect of course was her assertion that disagreeing with the LGBTQ/drag ideology constitutes hate speech, and that therefore, churches/Christians should be fearful of prosecution for holding to their convictions.

Hate speech is well-defined in law (<https://laws-lois.justice.gc.ca/eng/acts/c-46/page-42.html#doc-Cont>) and does not include simple disagreement, expressing an opinion or theological conviction.

A special thank you to the editors of the Voice for correctly pointing out that the pastor in Calgary was not arrested for his LGBTQ views, but for violating legal statutes.

I would invite anyone who is able to provide readers with the referenced list of parents who have had their children removed solely because said parents are not in favour of LGBTQ ideology. Uncorroborated fear-mongering needs to be laid to rest.

I respect our enshrined right to difference of opinion on these matters. All would be best served if we work hard at presenting facts instead of resorting to hyperbole for effect.

Petition calls for books to be removed from SCRL collection to ensure that sexually explicit materials and materials that contravene the Criminal Code of Canada, are not made available to children and youth in the future."

The petition alleges the library allows material that fits the description of child pornography to be available and lacks adequate protocols to ensure that parents can screen for any inappropriate sexual content.

In his statement to the Voice, Collins addressed the importance of these local facilities being public libraries.

"As such, we have to consider the needs and the wants of all the citizens that fund and utilize the resources available through the libraries," he said. "Diversity of all these resources is what keeps our patrons coming back and attracting new people."

"SCRL has a highly regarded collection development policy that has been well reviewed. It guides the content within our libraries to meet the needs of all our patrons," Collins continued. "Patrons enjoy the right to choose the resources offered by our library, and they also have the right not to choose materials they do not agree with or feel are not appropriate for their individual values."

"All patrons have the ability to challenge materials as indicated within our book complaint review process. That includes the opportunity to appeal."

This issue was first brought up last fall by individuals who wanted books they deemed as inappropriate for children be removed from local libraries. A review of the books in question resulted in a decision to keep them on the shelves.

In recent months, delegations have appeared before the SCRL's seven member municipalities, calling for councils to address the matter, potentially by pulling public funding for the library. Similar delegations spoke out again at the public budget meetings hosted by the Winkler and Stanley councils last week.

Thus far, statements from member municipalities and local officials have stressed the importance of the public library system to the community and emphasized that complaints about SCRL's collection materials need to go to the library board, which has followed its protocols in reviewing and responding to these complaints.

It has also been noted that the library board consulted legal counsel who advised them these books are not in violation of Canadian law. The delegation, meanwhile, say they have legal counsel stating otherwise.

"PATRONS ENJOY THE RIGHT TO CHOOSE THE RESOURCES OFFERED BY OUR LIBRARY, AND THEY ALSO HAVE THE RIGHT NOT TO CHOOSE MATERIALS THEY DO NOT AGREE WITH ..."

High-risk groups now eligible for spring COVID-19 booster shot

By Voice staff

Manitobans with the highest risk of negative COVID-19 outcomes are now able to get their spring bivalent booster shot.

Following recommendations from the National Advisory Committee on Immunization, Manitoba Health last week announced the shot is available for adults aged 65 and older; Indigenous people age 45 and older, including First Nations, Inuit and Métis peoples, regardless of place of residence; residents of long-term care or assisted living facilities; and adults aged 18 and older who are moderately to severely immunocompromised. They recommend people wait six months between booster doses for the best immune response.

You should also wait six months between this shot and your last COVID-19 infection. At a minimum, you need to at least be recovered from the infection before this dose.

Eligible people are advised to discuss the timing of spring boosters with a health-care provider. This is because Manitoba Health is anticipating a fall 2023 COVID-19 booster campaign. Getting a dose in the spring could affect when an individual would be eligible to receive a booster dose in the fall.

Manitoba Health also continues to encourage people to get a COVID-19 booster dose if they did not receive one as part of the fall 2022 booster campaign.

Vaccine appointments can be made at medical clinics, pharmacies, and many other locations by phone at 1-844-626-8222 or online at <https://patient.petal-health.com/login?groupId=6032>. Walk-in vaccinations are also available at many locations.

As of March 4, nearly 78 per cent of all Manitobans have received at least two doses of a COVID-19 vaccine and about 20 per cent of Manitobans have had at least one dose of a bivalent COVID-19 vaccine.

St. Leon break-in leads to arrest

By Voice staff

A 28-year-old man is in custody after a police pursuit last week.

On the afternoon of March 16., Pembina Valley RCMP responded to a possible break-in at a residence on Main Street in St. Leon.

While officers were en route they were advised the suspect had left in a black truck.

Officers located the vehicle and initiated a traffic stop, but the driver refused to stop and fled.

Police continued to patrol the area and found the vehicle stuck in deep snow near Road 54W and 11N. The male driver fled on foot.

After a search the suspect was located approximately two kilometers from the vehicle and arrested without incident. He was found to have several warrants from other provinces.

He has been charged with two counts of flight from police, two counts of possession of stolen property obtained by crime, resisting arrest, and three counts of failing to comply.

RCMP continue to investigate.

MTYP brings 'Frozen River' to local schools

By Lorne Stelmach

A Manitoba Theatre for Young People (MTYP) touring production that came to southern Manitoba this past week offered a timely message for students.

Frozen River explores such ideas as broken promises, reconciliation, and connection through a story that spans centuries. It had performances in Altona last Tuesday and in Morden Wednesday.

It offered Julia Davis—who is a Winnipeg Inuk singer, actress, and composer—a great opportunity to give back to MTYP, where she started theatre classes at a young age and then as a teenager was in their musical theatre company.

“This is my first professional touring production with them, so it’s pretty cool. It’s a pretty cool full circle moment after being involved with them for so many years,” said Davis. “It’s been really cool to be going all over the province.”

Davis recently completed her second year of study with the Village Conservatory for Music Theatre, where she premiered her own piece, Aqqaq (Northern Lights), at the year-end showcase.

She also holds a Bachelor of Music in vocal performance from the Desautels Faculty of Music at the University of Manitoba and is actively involved in theatre performances, competitions, and film projects around Winnipeg.

Davis is now part of Frozen River as it undertakes a 12-week tour across Manitoba before heading to Young People’s Theatre in Toronto and ending the tour in northern Manitoba.

Come May, the show will have been performed over 180 times across the country. It is a story that draws on history, cooperation, traditional knowledge, and reconciliation.

Grandmother Moon tells the story of two 11-year-olds born under the same blood moon but in different parts of the world.

The play follows their stories as they meet in a forest and that of their descendants who meet in the present day in what is known as Manitoba. A broken promise from the past can be righted when there is finally an openness to learn from those who have protected and honoured the waterways for centuries.

Davis likes how the story makes the connections between the different timelines.

“It’s about these two girls and their friendship and how they interact, and it’s told in a really exciting way. They use puppets, there’s some beautiful music, and the set is just gorgeous,” she said. “It’s a beautiful story that I think is accessible for all ages.”

“The idea is about understanding each other’s cultures and making promises that are intended to be kept and the repercussions that can come from breaking those promises and the hurt that can come from not being able to try to understand a culture that is different from your own.

“It’s told in a way that the kids can understand,” Davis continued. “The reception has been great so far. We do a little question and answer at the end, and it’s been really neat to see what they’ve picked up from the play and the things that they remember and the messages that they received through the story.

“We do discuss the issues, such as the water on the reserves, how a lot of reserves today don’t have access to clean water ... that’s an important issue that arises in the play and in real life.

“I hope it can really inspire them to keep having these conversations,” Davis said in concluding with her thought on what she hopes students take away from the show.

“I think that the most interesting part or the most unexpected part for me was how much the kids really pick up from the play and how they get it in a way you don’t expect in kids that young ... they understand what goes wrong in the friendship and what could be done to fix the problems.”

Lack of organizers cancels Morden Triathlon

By Lorne Stelmach

One of Morden's staple summer events is a no-go this year.

A lack of volunteer organizers means the Morden Triathlon will not take place this July.

"The triathlon club in Morden has seen fewer members return after the pandemic," said Heather Francis, who has been serving as race director. "I think that's not a problem unique to our triathlon club. I know many of them in Manitoba struggled this past year as well.

"At this point, we simply don't have enough members to make it feasible to organize and put on the Morden Triathlon this year."

The event has had a tumultuous few years, getting cancelled in 2018 due to a shortage of volunteers, returning in 2019, and then facing two more years of cancellations thanks to the pandemic.

The 2022 race was buoyed by serving as a qualifying event for the World Triathlon Multisport Championships taking place this year.

Too few people willing to take a leadership role in organizing the Morden Triathlon means the 2023 event has been cancelled.

The race lineup last year included a number of different triathlon and duathlon events as well as Kids of Steel races.

Francis said they felt good about the response in 2022, but they had to run the event shortstaffed.

"It went well last year but there were only as few of us doing a lot of the work, and it was a bit too much for volunteers to take on.

"We always have great turnout for the race weekend. I don't think we've ever had a concern about having enough event volunteers, but what we are really lacking is the core volunteers who are committed and dedicated to the huge task of organizing each of the different functions that are necessary to make the weekend a success."

Francis hopes to revive the local 3rd Wave Triathlon Club in the year ahead.

"We'll be looking to do some recruitment this year, but we just didn't have enough in place in time to ensure that the event would go well this year."

ManSEA hosting sustainable energy conference April 4

By Lorne Stelmach

An upcoming conference in Morden will focus on the theme of energy independence for Manitoba.

The Manitoba Sustainable Energy Association (ManSEA) gathers April 4 at the Access Event Centre, and it will bring together leading experts, innovative businesses, and government officials from across the province and beyond.

Discussions will explore sustainable energy solutions that could help Manitoba become more self-sufficient and less reliant on non-renewable resources.

"It really does effect everyone and anyone ... it really does affect everyone from multi-million corporations right down to individual households," said Alexander Lavoie, ManSEA board member.

"Energy independence is not only important for our environment but also for our economy, so we are thrilled to be hosting this event to address these critical issues," he said. "We have a responsibility to future generations to ensure a sustainable and secure energy supply, and this conference is an excellent opportunity to encourage discussion and action toward that goal."

The mission of the association is to promote the sustainable development of Manitoba's energy resources. It believes that long-term prosperity and quality of life will be possible only if we transition from non-renewable to renewable energy throughout the province—a change it believes can create significant economic development opportunities.

Conference attendees will have the opportunity to attend presentations and networking sessions and check out a variety of exhibitor displays.

Topics will include integrated resource planning processes, energy savings for businesses and residences, phosphorous and biochar production from biomass, and renewable technology opportunities and challenges, among others.

"With the increased focus on environmental social governance from a variety of sectors, sustainable energy has certainly been an important piece of that," said Lavoie.

"There's a big focus on energy efficiency, making your house more sustainable," he added, noting for example the Manitoba Environmental Industries Association has an energy advisor program which can do individual energy audits for households. "And there are some programs and grants available out there, especially through Efficiency Manitoba, which a lot of people don't realize can help them save money.

"We really are hoping for individuals to educate themselves a little more on energy efficiency and the ways that we can achieve it," said Lavoie. "The other piece is to find opportunities to save money by looking at the different options with organizations and businesses that are located in Manitoba."

Learning where you belong

By Lori Penner

Knowing your place in the world is important—even in Grade 1.

Last week, the 21 kids in Jennifer Toews' class at École Elmwood School learned all about their place in the community, with the help of a bunch of little boxes.

"Our social studies unit starts with the topic I Belong," says Toews. "We begin with the fact that we belong to a family, and what that looks like. Then we talk about how we belong to groups, and one of those groups is the classroom. We also identify other groups in the community they may belong to, such as a sports club or team."

In the second unit, they discuss their place in the world using maps and globes.

"One thing they have to know is their physical address. They each bring a little box and they put their physical address on it and decorate it to look like their house."

From there the kids choose an important place in Altona, such as the gallery or store, and decorate a box to look just like it.

The students also learn about the shape of the town, and how it is divided into four quadrants.

"We learned about Main St. and Centre Ave. and then we set up a miniature version of Altona in the classroom," says Toews.

The students were thrilled to have Altona Mayor Harv Schroeder pay a visit to tour their little cardboard town.

"We talked about how the principal is the boss at the school, and the mayor is the boss of the town," Toews shares. "Since he was once a part of public works, the mayor told them all about where our water comes from and where the sewer goes."

"They really enjoyed this project. This is more of an introduction to social studies. They're still very young, but you can see how they are understanding some of the different perspectives."

The class also designed a little book that notes why certain places in the community are important, such as attractions like the giant Van Gogh painting.

"It shows how we all rely on each other to make a community," Toews says. "Our next topic covers our rights and responsibilities in the community. We talk about how we all depend on each other and how we solve conflicts."

Toews says these lessons provide a foundation they can build on each year.

"Knowing who they are, not only in their family, but also in the classroom, the community, and the world at large opens their eyes to where they fit in."

trial park spans over 260 acres. Phase 1 introduces 26 new lots, with two premium lots still available on 14th Ave NE.

Lots will range in size from 0.75 to 1.4 acres and will be serviced with hydro, sewer, and natural gas. Immediate possession will be available for premium lots, with an Aug. 1 possession for the remainder of the lots.

"We made the lots a little smaller this time," Schroeder says. "The original industrial park offered two-acre lots, and some of the businesses found them to be too long. And if a business finds these lots to be too small, they can always purchase another one."

The Town is also offering a Tax Incentive Program in which eligible businesses will have municipal taxes waived for the first three years on new commercial/industrial buildings or large-scale additions/expansions.

"Now that the work has begun, we're seeing more interest and a lot of wheels are in motion," Schroeder says.

Looking back, Schroeder applauds council, the Altona Community Development Corporation, and the Municipality of Rhineland for their forward thinking with this project in terms of the community and the region's economic future.

He adds that it also takes the long-term vision of a business developer who believes in the community and wants to put down roots.

"We have several developers who see a bright future here in Altona."

BLSD approves budget, seeks feedback for future planning

By Lori Penner

Border Land School Division (BLSD) has approved a $39 million budget for the 2023/24 school year—a jump of $1.4 million, or 3.8 per cent, over the current year.

Most of the budget, $38.5 million, will cover operating expenses.

Salaries are always the largest expense, says board chair Patty Wiebe, but last year's average inflation rate of 7.8 per cent also had a huge impact, with significant increases in fuel, parts, and insurance costs.

"It all adds up and makes a big difference," she says.

While the board was able to balance the operating expenses, superintendent Kristy Curry says they'll be working with a deficit of $500,000 with the capital budget.

Unable to raise local education property taxes because of a mandate from the provincial government, the board hopes to make up the difference down the road.

"The provincial capital budget is in March, so we're hopeful that we'll get some provincial announcements that will take away that deficit," Curry says. "However, if that does not materialize, we'll be using our surplus dollars to fund some of the projects that we need to complete."

Those projects include ongoing flooring and cabinet updates in the division's various buildings, along with replacing a number of school public announcement systems. As well, plans are to improve the vapour barrier and brick work in some problem areas at a few schools.

Wiebe says these are all projects that need to happen; the budget doesn't include any wish list items.

"The priority during these latest budget deliberations was to keep the impact to student learning to a minimum. Right now, we're just trying to maintain what we have. That really limits planning forward."

Over the past five years, BLSD has reduced a number of things, including HVAC and tech coordinator positions, project expenditures, dollars in the bus reserve, school budgets, division office staffing levels, and school support staff.

BLSD board members discuss the new survey being sent to parents, outlining their priorities in their children's learning, in light of a new provincial education funding model being announced this spring.

Border Land School Division (BLSD) board chair Patty Wiebe and superintendent Krista Curry say in spite of working with a deficit, they are glad they were able to avoid cuts to school budgets this year.

"It's getting tight," says Wiebe. "If I were to make a wish, it would be that we can keep our classes the size that they are, to keep our teachers that we have, our buildings running, and student learning at maximum capacity."

One thing they did not cut this year were school budgets. BLSD was able to maintain current staffing and programs, aside from areas of declining enrolment where a reduction in staff was necessary.

"We are situated well in the province, where the board has supported small class sizes and EAs as support staff. So our ratios are certainly on the better end of the province, and we've done that purposely," says Curry. "Even over the past years, our student support staff ratios are one of the best in the province."

Meanwhile, ratepayers can expect a decrease in their upcoming property tax bills. With most properties located within BLSD experiencing an increase in assessment this year, the division's mill rate will go down. That translates into a reduction of $180 in education property taxes for homes assessed at $250,000 in 2022 and 2023.

And while the province has yet to announce their new education funding model for public education in Manitoba, BLSD trustees are preparing for when the day does come.

Post-provincial budget consultations are being planned with each school division. In the meantime, BLSD has launched a future budget planning survey, to brace themselves for any changes and bring parents into the loop.

The survey, which contains three questions, will be sent to the households of all BLSD students. It is also posted on the division's website for the remaining public to fill out.

Friesens supports daycare

By Voice staff

Friesens Corporation's employee-owners gave the Kiddie Sunshine Centre fundraising project a boost last week.

The Altona company recently presented the daycare centre, which is working on securing funding for a new building, a donation of $7,031.

Funds came from the company's Employee-Directed Giving Program, in which each employee votes for local organizations they feel would most benefit from charitable support. The donation amount is correlated to the number of votes the recipient organization receives.

"Availability of childcare is a key component to the health of our community and the health of our company," Friesens CEO Chad Friesen said in a statement. "As a community-builder, we are excited to support Kiddie Sunshine Centre."

How plants can improve your—and the planet's—health

By Connie Heppner Mueller,
Altona Community Action Network

A plant-heavy diet has been recommended for better human health for a long time. But did you know that eating more plants is good for the planet too?

The Earth's climate is changing. The change shows up in virtually every indicator that the International Panel on Climate Change tracks, from rising global greenhouse gas emissions, sea levels, and air and ocean temperatures to more heatwaves, heavy rains, persistent droughts and flooding on the coasts.

"The climate crisis has arrived and is accelerating faster than most scientists expected," said a "climate emergency" warning from 11,000 scientists in 153 countries in January (www.

It can be overwhelming to know what to do about such a huge problem, but there is one simple change anyone can make today that can make a difference: eating more plants and less animal foods.

"Globally, livestock systems are responsible for around 11 to 15 percent of greenhouse gas emissions, they occupy 80 per cent of global agricultural land, and they use around 30 per cent of agricultural water," says the Center for Science in the Public Interest (nutritionaction.com/daily/what-to-eat/how-plant-heavy-diets-can-help-the-planets-health).

Why is the impact of beef so much greater than other foods? Partly this is because of how their digestive systems work. Digesting grass is a long and complicated process for the cow and a lot of methane gas, which comes out as burps and farts, is produced in the process. And methane is about 25 times more potent as a greenhouse gas than CO₂.

But if you need even more reasons to pump up the plants in your diet, plant proteins are high in fibre and low in fat which can help to ward off cancer, decrease risk of heart disease and stroke, decrease risk of diabetes and to boot - it's usually less expensive than a meat-heavy diet. A pound of beans is about $1.20 whereas a pound of beef is over $5.00.

And you don't have to become a vegan to make a difference. Even just replacing meat in a few meals a week can have an impact.

When our family began to reduce our meat consumption we found Meatless Mondays to be a helpful place to start.

Meatless Monday is a campaign to encourage people to eliminate meat from their diet on Mondays. Over time, meatless Mondays allowed us to expand the list of meatless recipes that we enjoy. Chickpeas can almost always be substituted for chicken. Black beans or lentils are a great alternative for beef.

So why not give it a try? How about coconut chickpea curry? Lentil and black bean chili? Thai peanut stir fry? The options are endless and the benefits abound—for this generation and the next.

ACAN seeks to inspire eco-friendly and sustainable practices in our community through education and action.

Altona police make arrest in drug trafficking bust

By Voice staff

Altona police got a dangerous drug off the streets last week.

On the evening of March 14, Altona Police Service members were joined by the Regional Support Tactical Team to execute a search warrant at an apartment building in the south-east part of town.

Chief Dan Defer explains the warrant was granted after an investigation determined that an occupant of the complex was involved in drug trafficking offences.

A 53-year-old Altona man has been charged with possession for the purpose of trafficking fentanyl. The investigation is continuing.

Officers were still dealing with that situation when they were called to a disturbance at another residence in Altona just before midnight.

Police located and arrested a 37-year-old Winnipeg woman for breaching the conditions of her parole.

Her parole supervisor was contacted and a warrant of suspension of parole was issued. The woman was returned to custody in Winnipeg.

> BLS D BUDGET, FROM PG. 12

"The questions are, if we truly have to cut something, what would you want us to keep? If we have to cut something, what are some things that you think could go? And if we do end up with dollars we can spend, what is something you'd like to see added or continue to grow?"

Curry explains.

"We know that sometimes as they finish up their year-end, the government might have some money. So as a board we thought we'd have these survey answers we could keep in our folder as a guide to future spending if there comes a time when we have some extra funds."

Wiebe says so far the division has been able to avoid cuts in the classroom, but whether they can keep that up is unknown.

"At this point, if we do have to make any cuts, it's going to impact student learning."

Zodiacs win provincial basketball championship

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The Garden Valley Zodiacs varsity boys basketball team wrapped up an already stellar season with a provincial win.

The Zodiacs captured the 2023 MHSAA Varsity Boys Basketball Provincial Championship in Thompson last weekend.

The team made short work of Leo-Remillard with an opening round win of 100-66.

They went on to down top-ranked Neelin 93-70 and then beat the Nelson McIntyre Torchbearers in the final.

"The final game was a low scoring affair between two excellent defensive teams," shared assistant coach Walter Giesbrecht. "The game was tight the whole way, but the Zodiacs were able to pull away at the end for a 61-51 victory, seeing the Zodiacs win the fourth varsity boys basketball championship in school history."

Dante Dyck was named a Tour-namment All-star after averaging 17 points and 13 assists per game. In the final, he either scored or assisted on 53 of GVC's 61 points.

Sam Bergen was named Tournament MVP after averaging 29 points and 13 rebounds per game.

Giesbrecht also singled out a few other players.

"Ethan Wiebe was dominant inside all weekend, averaging 16 rebounds and six blocks per game," he said. "Jesse Vandenberg was a beast on defense and knocked down big shots, while Caleb Hildebrand provided excellent defense and floor spacing."

Winning provincials caps off a strong season for the Zodiacs, who finished with an 8-0 record in their league and then won the Zone 4 championship. Including the provincials, the team's record was 28-5 this season.

"This was a great group to work with. There was excellent team camaraderie," Giesbrecht said. "We knew going into the season that we had a chance to be pretty good, but you still have to go out there and do the work.

"There were a few moments of adversity during the season where a team could either fall apart a little or come together and improve, and to the guys' credit, we came together, got better, and put in the work required to become champions."

Flyers finish season in third, face Pistons in playoffs

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The Winkler Flyers wrapped up their last week in the Manitoba Junior Hockey League regular season with two wins and a loss.

In a preview of the playoffs to come, the Flyers faced the Steinbach Pistons on Wednesday. The Pistons won it 2-1.

Daniel Isaak got Winkler's lone goal late in the first period while the Pistons tied it up in the second and then got the game-winner midway through the third. Malachi Klassen made 39 saves in net as the Pistons outshot Winkler 41-32.

The Flyers bounced back with a 3-2 overtime win Saturday night at home against the Dauphin Kings.

Dalton Andrew drew first blood a few minutes in and Carter Dittmer tied the game at 2-2 early in the third to force overtime. There, Trent Sambrook scored for the win.

Klassen made 31 saves in net this game off 33 shots on goal. His teammates had 52 shots.

In the final game of the season Sunday, Winkler dropped the Niverville Nighthawks 6-4.

Goal scorers included Andrew (with two), Gavin Waltz, Mike Svenson, Lucas Ens, and Carter Dittmer. Aidan Comeau was in net this game and made 18 saves as Winkler outshot Niverville 28-22.

With that, Winkler's record for the season is 35-16-5-1 for 77 points, which puts them behind the Portage Terriers (90 points and the regular season champs) in first place and the Steinbach Pistons (85 points) in second in the MGEU East Division standings. Rounding out the top four and also making the cut for playoffs are the Niverville Nighthawks (56 points).

In the MGEU West Division, the Swan Valley Stampeders took first place followed by the OCN Blizzard, Virden Oil Capitals, and the Dauphin Kings.

SEMHL champion will be decided this week

By Ashleigh Viveiros

Ste Anne finally pulled off a win in the South Eastern Manitoba Hockey League championship finals last week.

The Aces took game four in front of a hometown crowd Sunday afternoon, following three straight wins by the Morden Bombers.

Morden did what it could to keep up in Sunday's game, with Tyler Peers getting the Bombers on the board midway through the second period and then Mike Rey scoring twice in the last five minutes to tie the game at 3-3 before the Aces scored a power-play goal to re-take the lead 4-3 heading into the last intermission.

Rey scored his third goal of the night early in the final period, but it wasn't enough to catch up. Ste. Anne added two more to win their first game of the series 6-4.

Reed Peters guarded Morden's net and made 28 saves off the 34 shots he faced. Morden had 31 shots on goal.

The loss was certainly a far cry from the Bombers' efforts a few nights earlier in game three, which they took 9-3.

The lengthy list of goal scorers included a hat-trick from Jaden Townsend, two from both Jory Mullen and Rey, and singles from Jay Fehr and Tyler Peers.

Peters made 49 saves in net.

Morden led the best-of-seven series three games to one heading into game five Tuesday night in Morden. If needed, game six is back in Ste. Anne Wednesday night and game seven is in Morden Saturday.

Thunder win Zone 4 championship

By Lorne Stelmach

The Morden Thunder are the Zone 4 high school hockey champions after completing a two game sweep of the Portage Trojans.

The Thunder won the best of three series with a 6-4 victory in game one in Portage March 6 and then wrapped it up with a 2-1 win in game two in Morden last Thursday.

Acoyen Fehr scored both Morden goals including a shorthanded marker in the first period and the winning goal at 12:01 of the third.

It was a fitting end to a season that saw Portage and Morden finish atop the standings with 20-4 regular season records, though Portage got first on the tie-breaking rules.

"They're a tough team to play against," said Thunder head coach Ryan Merasty. "On paper and stat-wise, everything was literally neck and neck. It was similar all across the board ... we maybe just had a little more depth."

Merasty thought there was a key factor that led to the team's success this year overall and particularly in the playoffs.

"The biggest thing was the team played as an entire team ... it was awesome to watch the entire team play as a team," he said.

"There wasn't a player who didn't play their position. There wasn't a player who didn't buy into the systems. It was a collaborative effort," Merasty continued. "There wasn't any individualism ... it was really one hundred per cent buy-in as a team."

The team was also led by a solid core of seven veteran Gr. 12 players along with a number of other returning players.

"They knew what to expect and were able to mentor and guide the younger players as well," said Merasty. "I've never seen a team be so cohesive."

He also noted that the Thunder very much fed off the support from their fans this season.

The Morden Thunder won the Zone 4 high school hockey championship last week with a 2-1 game two win Thursday night against the Portage Trojans, following up on their 6-4 game one victory.

"The community support has been absolutely phenomenal," he said. "It was a packed rink ... there have been tonnes of fans there ... people were dressed up ... and old players from the past who came from Winnipeg even on bad roads. I coached last year, and we had some players from last year's team show up as well."

Merasty now sees good potential for the team next year.

"We have a small core of players who are returning. Our defensive core doesn't get touched at all ... there's obviously some holes to fill ... but I think we'll have a good group for next year as well."

End of the line for male Pembina Valley Hawks

By Lorne Stelmach

The season came to a crashing halt for the male U18 Pembina Valley Hawks.

The third place Hawks fell 7-2 Saturday to the second ranked Winnipeg Bruins, who took the best of five semi-final series in three straight games.

Game three in Winnipeg went awry in the opening frame for the Hawks as they fell behind 4-1 and then trailed 5-2 after 40 minutes.

Kam Thomas and Carter Campbell scored for Pembina Valley, while Raiden LeGall made 28 saves with the Bruins holding a 39-23 edge in shots on goal.

The series had the potential to be close, as the two teams had split their regular season series with two close wins each. The Bruins and the Hawks in the end were separated by just a single point in the regular season standings.

It became a different story, though, in this series as the Bruins took the opening two games with a pair of 4-0 and 7-0 shutouts.

"We went in there as an underdog, and we needed a lot of things to go right early to them feeling the pressure ... it actually went the other way around, and they got off to a good start," said Hawks head coach Dorian Miller.

"Credit to them, they're just a really good team out of the whole league, that's the match-up that gave us the most problems ... we were always on our heels against them."

The Bruins will now face either the Brandon Wheat Kings or the Winnipeg Wild in the finals. The decisive game five for that series took place Tuesday night.

Miller takes pride in what the Haws accomplished this year in what they had thought would be a bit of a rebuilding season.

"I couldn't be happier ... the hope was to fight for a playoff spot and see what happens," he said.

"The boys became such a close knit group, such a fun group ... and they improved, so being in the final four is a great season for them," Miller said. "I have nothing but praise for the team and how they handled the year and improved and bought in and stuck together."

As always, they will now lose some players as they age out of the program, but Miller thinks there are good prospects for next season.

"There could be a solid group back. Age-wise, I think we only lose five guys, but there's probably two or three guys who will move on to junior A," he said. "It's still a good nucleus that is eligible to come back."

Twisters to face Hawks in quarter-finals

By Lorne Stelmach

The Pembina Valley Twisters will be aiming to take down the Charleswood Hawks in the MMJHL quarter-finals.

The best of seven series gets underway this week between the third place Hawks and sixth place Twisters.

Pembina Valley came into the series as the underdogs with the Twisters losing four of the five regular season games. Charleswood finished at 27-13-3-2 for 59 points. Pembina Valley was 22-17-3-3 for 50 points.

The Twisters closed out the regular season with a 5-3 loss to Transcona

Friday and then earning a 6-4 victory over the Raiders Saturday.

Two goals within about two minutes of the third period by Transcona broke open what had been a 3-3 game early in the final frame.

Merek Degraeve, Mike Heppner, and Zander Carels scored for Pembina Valley while Logan Enns made 22 saves as the Twisters won the shot battle 30-27.

The Twisters trailed 4-2 early in the third against the Raiders before firing home four unanswered goals.

Caelen Russell had a pair while singles came in from Degraeve, Jonathan Dyck, Slade Sotheran, and Kyle Van-Denyze.

Shots on goal were 38-27 for the Twisters with Matt Grysiuk getting the win in net with 23 saves.

The quarter-final kicked off Tuesday night. Results were not available at press time.

The series continues with game two Thursday, game three Saturday, and game four Sunday.

The other quarter-finals have St. James facing St. Boniface, River East against Transcona, and St. Vital taking on Fort Garry Fort Rouge.

Pembina Valley wrestlers win big at provincials

By Ashleigh viveiros

The Pembina Valley Wrestling Club stood tall at the Provincial Wrestling Championship held in Winnipeg earlier this month.

Hosted by the Manitoba Amateur Wrestling Association (MAWA), the 2023 tournament took place at Canadian Mennonite University March 4.

Four members of the Pembina Valley club came home with hardware to show they're the best in the province. Brock Becker (Winkler), Jeff Morgan (Morden), Brady Hassle (Carman), and Katie McLachlan (Morris) all won gold in their respective weight categories.

It was Becker's second provincial win in a row.

"It felt really good," he said via email last week. "I was supposed to wrestle best two out of three to decide the championship, but my opponent was injured in our first match when I headlocked him so I didn't get to wrestle as much as I would have liked."

Contact sports have been a passion of Becker's since he was a kid.

"I've been wrestling on and off since around 2018, but I've been in combat sports since I was three," he said. "I've really gotten into wrestling though these past couple years."

"I like that it's independent. I don't have to rely on anybody else to win, and when I mess up I know it's my fault and I can work on it."

Becker's time on the mat includes representing Manitoba at the 2022 Summer Games, where he finished sixth in his weight group.

Becker's father Peter heads up both the local club as a coach (alongside Jake Sailer) and the MAWA as its president.

The pandemic put an end to the high school team in Winkler but gave rise to this new regional club, which had about a dozen elementary-age kids and eight high schoolers taking part this past season.

The elder Becker said he and Sailer are so proud of their four provincial champions, and of the hard work all the kids put in this season.

"We just started the club last year, so everybody was fairly new to it, with a few exceptions," he said.

The club practises twice a week in Carman throughout the fall and winter. Some club members will also be competing in matches in the U.S. this spring and summer.

Wrestling is a unique sport in this area but one that has a lot of benefits for youth athletes, Becker said. It not only provides high-energy kids with a fun way to burn off some steam, but also fosters discipline, commitment, and good sportsmanship.

"It's a lot of self-discipline, because it's all you—if you lose, it's your fault. If you win, it's your fault. You can't blame anybody else. If you're not putting the time and effort into it you're going to get what you get out of it."

For more information on the club, reach out to Becker at 204-384-6508 or email pembinavalleywrestling@gmail.com.

Thunder athlete honoured

By Voice staff

A Morden Thunder player was named the Manitoba High School Athletic Association Dairy Farmers of Manitoba Athlete of the Week earlier this month.

Morden Collegiate's Josh Ryckman-Guilford received the honour March 8 after wracking up six goals and 12 points in four games as the Thunder went 4-0 in the first two rounds of the Zone 4 high school hockey playoffs.

Morden went on to beat the Portage Trojans in the championship finals last week.

"Josh is a versatile player who plays forward and defence while playing even strength and plays defence on the power play all the while accumulating zero penalty minutes," athletic director Nicole Rutledge shares.

The Gr. 12 student also competes badminton, golf, and baseball for Morden while maintaining a 75 per cent academic average.

Young adults living at home

Submitted by Gwen Randall

There was a time when it was common for young people to leave home once they turned eighteen. By the time children left home, parents were still in their early forties. The age of parenthood has increased over time, so now parents may be much older before their children go out on their own.

Increasingly, young adults are still living at home longer than in the past. This creates some dilemmas both for the parents and the adult child. Often boundaries become muddled, because there is still a parent-child relationship, only now all are adults.

Every situation is different; however, some general guidelines always apply. Although this may be tough to swallow, when you are living in your parent's home, your "adult" status in the outside world does not supersede your "child" status at home. Just because you are over eighteen does not give you special rights to break house rules.

What this means is that it is your parents' house, and they can make the rules. If you want to make the rules, you must get your own house! What you cannot do is to argue with them about how they want things to be in their own home, any more than you would want them to make rules once you live on your own.

Even if you are paying rent, it is likely less than you would pay to rent your own place, so your parents are, in effect, subsidizing you. The fact that you pay rent does not mean they cannot set the rules.

Renting from parents is not the same as renting from a landlord. If you want the freedom to live as you like, it is time to become and independent adult. As long as you live in your parents' home, you are a still a dependent. A landlord would not feed you, pay for your utilities or let you borrow their car. Your furniture, Wi-Fi, and home insurance would not be covered by your landlord.

So, if parents want you in by a certain time so you are not waking them with your coming and going, you need to honor that. If they expect you to do certain chores, you need to contribute in that way as well. In fact, you should offer to help. If you are working full time, it would be nice to contribute something to the grocery budget. You should also make some of the meals.

Remember too, now that you are an adult your parents should be free of parent-child conflicts. They have undoubtedly worked hard all their lives and deserve to enjoy this time. I have seen too many adults, who, in their later life are consistently stressed by an adult child living at home. If they have generously allowed you to stay on, be thankful, and strive to make their lives easier, not harder.

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Level: Intermediate

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

OBITUARY

Richard Friesen 1945 - 2023

On Thursday, March 16, 2023, Richard H. Friesen of Morden, MB., a beloved father, grandfather and brother, lost his battle with cancer. He was 77 years young.

An avid fan of cars, finding a good deal and coming up with new projects to ignite both passions. He was well known for always having a good story to tell, which always got funnier especially after the fifth time hearing it and having the most infectious laugh that you swear you can still hear even now.

He will be dearly missed by his two daughters, Krista MacDonald and Karla Metterle; two sons-in-law, Jarett MacDonald and Jeremiah Metterle; his four grandchildren, Jacob and Jenna McDonald and Claire and Evan Metterle; his sisters, Helen Penner and Marion Neufeld and his brother, Abe Friesen.

Anyone that met Rick knew they had an instant friend, so we know that many people will feel the loss of such a charismatic man.

A private service will be held at La Salle Mennonite Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers please consider making a donation in Richard's memory to the CancerCare Manitoba Foundation or to his favorite place to find those deals, the Morden Community Thrift Store.

OBITUARY

Kim Elisabeth Van Vliet October 26, 1961 - March 9, 2023

Kim Elisabeth Van Vliet was filled with sage advice and a snarky sense of humor. She was a deeply committed mother and had the remarkable gift of making people feel seen. She was a passionate reader from childhood and became an inspired librarian in her 40's. She loved days filled with canoeing, walking, swimming, sauna, and a good family crib tournament. She found solace in creativity and continued to sew and knit until the week before she passed.

Kim was born on October 26, 1961 in Toronto and passed away on the evening of March 9, 2023 in her home in Winnipeg surrounded by family. Kim continues to be loved and remembered by her partner of 36 years Andrew Vaisius; their children and partners Emily (Heinz), Ruby (Astrid), Grey (Marina), Boreal and Demeter (Tellis), and three grandchildren Linden, Tommi Jean, and Finnley. As well as her four siblings and extended family in Canada, the USA, Holland and Finland.

She will be celebrated with tea and toast and a good dance party.

Peacefully, on Thursday, March 9, 2023 at 4:48 a.m. and with her Mom, brother and sister-in-law by her side, Diane entered Glory to be with the Lord Jesus.

She struggled with many physical and intellectual limitations but lived with great courage and determination. As a Special Olympian, Diane boasts 57 medals, including a Bronze won at the Nationals in 1992. In 1999 Diane decided she wanted to live and work in Winkler, where she is very well known by the community. She could often be seen walking through downtown, greeting everyone

Morden Magics celebrating 35 years of gymnastics

By Lorne Stelmach

The Morden Magics gymnastics club is aiming to get the word out as it marks a milestone this year.

The club would not only like to raise awareness and promote itself but also get more people involved, especially as coaches.

It comes with the organization marking 35 years since it became officially known as the Morden Magics, which is short for Morden Artistic Gymnastics International Club.

"They actually had kids then who would come up from Walhalla, so that's how the name started," explained Jen Martens, who is head coach for the competitive program.

"The fact that we're still going, I think, is a big deal," she said. "Many surrounding towns don't have gymnastics club and we still do, so we support many athletes who come not just from Morden but from Winkler, Carman, Altona, Plum Coulee and Manitou ... all these places come to us. "I think it is a big thing for Morden, so it would be nice to have a little more support and just have people be more aware."

The club currently has 175 kids registered in its three programs: kindergarten, recreation, and competitive.

Martens noted the overall numbers declined during the pandemic, which also impacted them in another key way.

"We've been very grateful to the city that we have always had a place at the Access Event Centre. When COVID happened, we got turned away because it got turned into the vaccination supersite.

"Luckily we were able to be in the United Church, which had a gym space to rent. It was small for us, but we were at least able to keep things going."

Their ultimate dream would be to some day have their own facility somewhere.

"We have to set up all of our equipment and take it down every week. It's hard on the equipment and it's just hard work," Martens said. "The talk is always could we have our own facility? That is the dream ... I don't know how practical it would really be, though."

Right now what the club really needs to move forward is more people to get involved as coaches.

"It's unfortunate we are not able to register as many kids as we would like because we just don't have the coaching for it," Martens said. "It would be nice to find more coaches so we wouldn't have kids on waiting lists who don't get into the program."

The Magics wrap up the current season with their annual display on Tuesday, April 11 starting at 6 p.m.. There is a $2 admission that goes to support Kidsport. Children five and under get in for free.

If you are interested in getting involved with the club, e-mail magics.coach@gmail.com.

A big step forward for Coulee's pedestrian bridge project

By Lori Penner

After 14 months of planning and fundraising, June Letkeman's dream of building a pedestrian bridge in Plum Coulee is about to come true.

Letkeman says the province has finally cleared the way for the project to move forward.

"We're very excited because we finally got an answer from Manitoba Infrastructure and the Water Resources department that our hydrology study is done and completed," she says.

The second step is the geo-technical design, which the committee is on the verge of completing. Step three is to work with a structural engineer prior to receiving their construction permit.

"We're meeting with him this week, and then we should be good to go," says Letkeman.

Letkeman says the new bridge is something that's been needed in the community for about 10 years.

The current footbridge over the Hespeler drain is not safe or accessible for scooters and wheelchairs.

"It's not just about convenience—we have no safe way of walking from our north side of town to the south side of town because Hwy. 14 is definitely not safe for pedestrians, and neither is Hwy. 306, and those are the only routes we have," Letkeman says. "On the north side of town, we have all our businesses, churches, and school. And on the south side we have our new condos and our new developments, and people are moving in with children. Once we have the bridge, the kids can even walk to school."

"This bridge will be used for years. It's not just a dream. It's a necessity."

Letkeman is part of a small committee behind the project. The group has been actively involved in the planning process with some engineering help from a pair of locals, Justin Wiebe and Kyle Wiebe.

From the start, the project hit a number of speed bumps.

"We started it the first year into COVID and then we had to leave it because we couldn't raise funds then. It just wasn't a good time," Letkeman says.

Then they found out they needed to comply with all the latest CSA standards, which pushed up their original estimate of $280,000 to $420,000.

But thanks to donations from community members and businesses, lots of fundraising, and a Building Sustainable Communities grant of $62,000, they've already raised enough to cover over half of the costs.

They've also applied for more grants. Letkeman says they hope to have all the required funds raised by the time the bridge is up.

"I'm just so pleased with all the support that we have had," she says. "It just tells me that the community really recognizes the need for this bridge."

"We need to have this bridge and we will get it. We're making headway now, after this long wait. And hopefully we'll put the piers in this spring."

If you'd like to support the project, the committee has just launched another fundraiser. For $250 you can buy a board for the bridge and be recognized on a donor board at the site.

To buy a board, contact Letkeman at 204-362-0501 or email wandererjll@gmail.com.
