YFC Station officially opens to rave reviews

By Lori Penner

All their hard work has paid off, and last week the staff and board of YFC Altona-Youth Unlimited were finally able to show off their new drop-in centre: The Station.

A crowd of community members, board members and dignitaries gathered for a tour of the facility at their grand opening on March 24.

The project began nearly two years ago, when YFC partnered with Friesens Corporation after they were offered the space at the former box plant building at the corner of 6th St. SE and 2nd Ave. SE.

Their old location just south of the fire hall on 1st SW had served them well, but at roughly 1,500 sq. ft. they were bursting at the seams, and there was no space left for all the learning opportunities they wanted to offer local youth.

The new space boasts over 7,600 square feet for a larger meeting area, kitchen and coffee bar, and YFC's Maker Space, a creative outlet for teens to learn valuable skills, possibly leading to job opportunities. The Maker Space program gives teens the opportunity to develop and practice skills such as wood working, 3D design, digital arts, music, programming and much more.

Borderland MLA Josh Guenther said it's incredible to see all the work, effort, and loving care that has gone into developing the facility.

He praised executive director Sheridan Sawatzky and program director Marty Falk for their determination and hard work in bringing all the pieces together.

"This truly is a gem within the community. It's a place of belonging and learning. A welcoming spot for local youth."

YFC also recently added outreach director Kendra Fehr to their Altona team.

YFC Altona - Youth Unlimited staffers Sheridan Sawatzky, Kendra Fehr, and Marty Falk cut the ribbon on their new space, which includes plenty of room for programming. Below: A tour of the music room.

Sawatzky said, "This is a big day. We've been open to the teens since May of last year, but this feels like everything is culminating at this point, and we'll actually be open to the teens in any capacity that we can."

He highlighted the various organizations that played a key role in getting them to this point, including Friesens Corporation.

"Having them partner with us really helped us make this a reality. When we started fundraising for this building, the community really got behind it, and we raised over half a million dollars in just 7 months. That made this place what it is today."

Sawatzky went on to thank the Town of Altona.

"YFC started in Altona about 25 years ago, and it would not have grown the way it has without their support. We've lived rent free and utility free for 25 years. That obviously played a huge role, and it became home to so many teens over the years. And it's our hope that this place becomes home to many more."

When they pitched the idea to the YFC board, Sawatzky wrote "Dream Big" on the subject line and $500,000 as the budget.

"And I wasn't shunned. The board really got behind the idea. It's so encouraging to operate on a larger scale than we ever could before."

Odia Reimer of Friesens Corporation said the company is excited to be part of the project.

"We believe that YFC is doing important work here in Altona and we are proud to support your efforts."

Altona Mayor Harv Schroeder said the new facility is far from the Altona

Nicole Enns takes on Harvest Festival director mantle

By Ashleigh Viveiros

August may seem like a long ways off, but the ball is already rolling on planning for the 2023 Winkler Harvest Festival.

The Aug. 11-13 community celebration has a new person leading the charge: Winkler community events coordinator Nicole Enns has stepped into the shoes left behind by Kathy Bueckert, who headed up the 2022 edition of the festival.

"Kathy was just a one-year term because there wasn't an event coordinator in place" when planning for the first festival post-pandemic began early last year, Enns explains.

Enns started in that position last summer and was able to shadow Bueckert in the weeks leading up to the festival and, of course, festival weekend itself.

"It was really good to be able to work beside her and see the goings on of the festival. I learned a lot," she says.

Now she's heading up an organizing committee that includes plenty of veterans who have been involved in pulling off their respective festival events for years.

"We've had one meeting so far, and we have another one coming up [this] week," Enns says, noting the experience on the committee certainly helps organizing go much more smoothly. "They're all bringing great ideas to the table."

It's too early for any big announcements—the headliner names will be released in April—but Enns stresses all the old festival favourites will return, with a few new things on the schedule as well.

"There's going to be some new things happening for kids," she says, though she's mum for now on what those are.

There will also be beer gardens this year—an offering that's definitely new for Winkler but something festival organizers have fielded requests about for years.

"We were hearing from a lot of the younger people, 20-somethings, that they would enjoy something like that, so we thought we would try it," Enns says, noting they're working out all the security aspects of offering alcohol on-site.

Beyond new events, they're always looking at ways to improve the festival as a whole, Enns says. The petting zoo, for example, is moving back outside from the arena into its own tent closer to the kid's area.

"The maintenance guys did not love it being inside," Enns says, chuckling. "And it just felt like it was way off from everything else kid-related, so we're moving that back."

Enns is certainly no stranger to the Harvest Festival. Not only did she grow up attending it, but she's following in the shoes of her father, Bob "Chomper" Giesbrecht, who served as festival director years ago.

"The festival was always something that I looked forward to every summer," she says. "And I always thought that it was kind of cool that my dad was in charge of everything. Now that I'm in charge, it's exciting and scary all in the same breath."

"It's such a great event. It's all about bringing the community together and celebrating."

You can stay up-to-date on festival announcements by heading to visitwinkler.ca/harvest-festival. That's also the place to go if you'd like information about sponsoring the festival or getting involved as a volunteer.

Province upgrades Red River flood risk to "major"

By Voice staff

So much for Mother Nature giving us a break this year.

Snow in recent weeks means we are now expecting at least some level of flooding along the Red River.

The Manitoba Transportation and Infrastructure's Hydrologic Forecast Centre released a March spring flood outlook last week that has a bit of a darker outlook than the one released in February.

It is now predicting a major risk of flooding on the Red River and a low to moderate risk of flooding in most Manitoba basins.

"At this time, the centre advises that due to recent precipitation events south of the border in the United States, the flood risk has increased to major on the Red River," the province said in a news release. "The flood risk is low to moderate in the Interlake region along the Fisher and Icelandic rivers, and along the Assiniboine River. The risk of spring flooding is generally low along several other rivers, including the Souris, Roseau, Rat and Pembina rivers."

The healing power of music

By Lorne Stelmach

Joel Klassen is obviously a firm believer in the transformative and healing power of music.

The Winkler resident who is now serving as the president of the Canadian Association of Music Therapists sees every day how music therapy can help in a wide variety of situations to promote health, well-being, and quality of life.

"Every day in my work, I work with people who can't tell me their first name, but they can sing all the words to their favourite songs," said Klassen, who was helping to promote and raise awareness of the field with March serving as Music Therapy Awareness Month.

"It's used in a wide range of settings ... my experience is in long term care and at Eden Mental Health Centre, but many therapists work in school settings or in intensive care in hospitals or pediatric care or cancer wards and maternity wards."

Klassen believes it is a field that continues to gain more recognition, with about a thousand music therapists in Canada working in a variety of settings.

Music therapy has been proven to help people improve skills, decrease stress, and feel strengthened during a transition or crisis by alleviating physical symptoms, supporting coping and well-being, and aiding people in processing their spiritual and existential concerns.

It often involves counselling coupled with intentional listening to live and/or recorded music while discussing the personal relevance of song lyrics as well as more active engagement in music experiences such as writing songs, singing or playing instruments.

Klassen traces his interest in the field back to music being a big part of his family life as a child.

"I grew up in a very musical household," he said, noting he learned not only to play a number of instruments but also sang in choirs.

"After high school I started working in homes with adults with disabilities," he said. "I started to just realize I love working with people, and I started bringing my guitar to that day program setting."

He then learned about music therapy as a career and knew quickly that was what he wanted to be doing.

Today, about 80 per cent of his job is working in dementia care, travelling to work with residents in long-term care homes across the region. Music therapy is also a full-time position at the Eden Mental Health Centre; he started there in 2005.

"It's the most consistently helpful intervention that many of the residents experience," Klassen suggested. "Many of the people hardly come out of their rooms except for meals, but they'll come out for music."

"Actually, a lot of my training was with people with autism, so I would be sitting at a piano ... the child would be sitting with a drum or a cymbal," he recalled. "Maybe they're non-verbal or don't have language in the normal way, but they're banging on this drum, and I'm matching that at the piano."

Klassen welcomes any opportunity to spread the word about his field of work.

"Our lot in life as music therapists is to have kind of an elevator speech or a way of explaining what it is to people, and even that isn't all that easy to do," he said. "It's interesting to be in a profession where there's that need to explain yourself a lot."

"Music is a part of being human, and music therapy works for people in the same way that music works on all of us.. The qualities of music, the rhythm and the emotion, they work on our human systems in very specific ways, and so a music therapist harnesses those qualities of music to facilitate the relationship."

"It's really like any other therapy in the sense that you're forming a relationship between two people, but it's music that is the tool that's facilitating that relationship."

"There is also a low risk of flooding for most other Manitoba basins, including the Saskatchewan River, Whiteshell lakes area and northern Manitoba. With the exceptions of Dauphin Lake and Lake St. Martin, most Manitoba lakes, including Lake Winnipeg and Lake Manitoba, are projected to remain within operating ranges after the spring runoff."

On the plus side, the Red River's water levels are expected to remain below community and individual flood protection levels, the province said.

As always, weather conditions between now and spring melt could change the flooding forecast significantly in the weeks ahead.

If we get average weather conditions, we could be looking at flood levels akin to what was seen in 2019. If we see a lot of snow or rain in the next few weeks, it might be more like the flooding of 2020.

Neither of those years saw water levels crest above the ring dikes protecting communities such as Morris. Nor did Hwy. 75 have to be closed.

CFDC to host 'Dig Deep' award gala April 15

By Voice staff

The Canadian Fossil Discovery Centre will honour a scientist who specializes in the origin of mosasaurs at its Dig Deep dinner fundraiser next month.

CFDC has announced Dr. Michael Caldwell will receive the third Dr.

Dr. Michael Caldwell will receive the Dr. Elizabeth 'Betsy' Nicholls Award for Excellence in Palaeontology from the Canadian Fossil Discovery Centre April 15

Elizabeth 'Betsy' Nicholls Award for Excellence in Palaeontology at the gala taking place in Morden April 15. Caldwell will also serve as the keynote speaker.

"We are excited to have Dr. Michael Caldwell to come to Manitoba," Adolfo Cuetara, CFDC executive director, said in announcing Caldwell's win last week. "His research directly connects with the evolutionary origin of the marine reptiles we host in our collections, and it is the key to understand the marine animals that ruled the Western Interior Seaway in what Manitoba is today, 83 million years ago."

Caldwell is a vertebrate palaeontologist and evolutionary biologist with a discipline-specific focus on the evolutionary history and interrelationships of snakes, lizards, and mosasaurs. He is currently a professor in the Department of Biological Sciences and the chair of the Faculty of Science at the University of Alberta.

In 2010, Caldwell co-authored a scientific publication redescribing the mosasaur Hainosaurus pembinensis as Tylosaurus pembinensis, of which Morden's "Bruce" fossil is the best-known specimen.

Caldwell said in a statement that he's deeply honoured to be recognized by the CFDC for his work.

"I knew Betsy Nicholls very well, admired her very much as both a person and a scientist, and am thrilled to receive this award, so aptly named in her honour," he said. "My work on marine reptiles from around the world has included mosasaurs from Manitoba and a number of my graduate students have worked in collections in Morden.

"The Cretaceous marine reptiles of Manitoba are without doubt, key fossils in our understanding of these ancient animals and it is my pleasure to be invited to the gala and to accept this award."

The gala is open to the public. Tickets are $100 (a $50 charitable donation receipt will be provided) and are available at www.discoverfossils.com, at the CFDC, or by calling 204-822-3406.

The evening will include supper, the awards presentation, a rainbow auction featuring replicas of fossil specimens, and the presentation of the plans to build a new facility for the CFDC. Funds raised go to the new facility project.

Is it worth the risk?

I am not a good gambler. Having been to Vegas numerous times over the years for various and sundry conferences, I, like so many others, could not resist the loud, bright, and busy casinos that cram nearly every square inch of space along “the strip.”

Now I say I am not a good gambler but what do I mean by that?

What I mean is that I’m the kind of guy that will wander the slot machine floor looking for a lost token or extra credits on an abandoned machine and play with that.

I’m the kind of guy that will nurse $20 for more than an hour playing Blackjack and walk away with nothing. Ultimately, to make any gains while gambling you have to be willing to risk a decent amount of money playing the odds. I am not that guy.

This is partly because I go by the mantra “the odds are never in your favour.” I just find it all too risky.

So a risk averse guy like me is never going to win big in Vegas. When you enter a place like Vegas with a set amount of money and proceed to operate on a risk averse basis I can almost guarantee that you will leave with nothing. Slowly but surely that money will dry up.

Now, a certain amount of this logic translates to investment. Playing it safe may seem like the most responsible choice but you can pretty much guarantee that you will not exit the investment space significantly ahead of where you started, and depending on the market, you may even end up behind. Riskier investments provide larger payoffs.

I’m thinking about these things because I am thinking about our region and our community investments. Lately it’s starting to feel a little like a regional poker table with Morden, Winkler, Altona, Carman, and Plum Coulee gathered around, cards held tight to chest, weighing one another’s choices.

I wonder sometimes who is who in the regional game of investment and odds. Who is betting big on the future? Who is playing it safe avoiding risk at all costs? Which player is quietly counting cards in the background? Which player is the $20 over an hour player like me—the player all the other players disdain.

One player bets big on a huge and costly community centre. Will it pay off? We will see. Another may be betting on building an indoor pool. Foolish or visionary? Who can say? Still another is making enormous concessions to commercial and industrial businesses, betting on a big win down the road in terms of increased and diversified taxes that don’t saddle residents with 78 per cent of the burden.

As a resident and taxpayer, I have fronted money to my player with a few hopes.

I want to see gains. I don’t want to simply see my money stretched out over a long, safe period of time until it slowly vanishes in the winnings of my adjacent competitors.

I expect risks to be taken on my behalf. Risks that not only see wins in infrastructure and basic maintenance but pay off big in the future with commercial and industrial growth that leads to residential growth (and not the other way around).

“I don’t want my city or province to gamble with my money!” I can hear a few people grumble, and I understand you. Believe me, I do.

Still, no one was ever heard saying “I sure am glad our city re-lined the sewers 10 years ago.” While that’s an absolute necessity everyone wants to see invested in, it’s not so much betting on the future as it is maintaining the present.

• DON'T MIND THE MESS

You're never too old to play

I think it must have been payday for a lot of people because the lineup at the bank was insanely long that afternoon.

I hesitated at the door, debating whether to even bother, since all I needed to do was make a quick deposit.

I can do that online, I surmised, but then thought, "Oh well, I'm already here."

I took my place at the back of the line, bracing for a lengthy stay. Entertainment is limited at times like that, and even scrolling my phone got old after a while. I made small talk with some of the people around me, but eventually stared blankly into space and wondered what to make for supper that night.

I waved at a lady I knew, but she was preoccupied with searching through her purse. Another visitor about 10 people ahead of me needed a lengthy explanation about a cheque she was depositing. So, I commenced staring blankly, and planned an entire menu in my head.

On this day, all the tellers were open, so the line actually did move from time to time. Just enough to get our hopes up and keep the circulation going in our legs. There were those with a slight bounce in their step, freshly arrived cheque in hand.

Others didn't look that happy.

So many bring their hopes and dreams to this place, taking out loans, starting up businesses, applying for mortgages, financing vacations, paying bills, and discovering their account balance.

I was about six feet away from my turn when I noticed her, happily romping around inside the roped off area that showed all of us in the queue where to stand.

I'm guessing she was about four years old, with a tiny pixie face and a strawberry blond ponytail. She seemed blissfully unconcerned with the trivial things our minds were focused on. She had only one mission: to keep the balloon she had walked in with airborne. So she bounced it with her little hands, tapping it upwards ever-so-gently whenever it wafted down again.

We all exchanged knowing glances, bracing ourselves for the inevitable "bang" when it hit a sharp corner or a pen, and the tears that would likely follow. At one point, it floated out of her reach and into mine, so I lightly tapped it back in her direction. There was a millisecond of caution in her blue eyes, then a giant grin. After that, she began to play balloon volleyball with all of us in the lineup, tearing us from our grownup worries and turning us into excited children again.

The lady behind me must have been at least 80, but you would never have guessed by the way she giggled when the balloon came her way.

Then, just like that, the little girl's expression became serious. She hugged the balloon and gravely announced, "Okay, I'm goin' home now" and scampered off behind her mother, whose banking was done.

Recess was over.

And I don't think there was a single person in that lineup who didn't wish they had a balloon in their pocket.

After the Teddy Bear Picnic, the trivia night is one of the organization's best ways to raise both awareness and funds, says executive director Chantal Human.

"Our goal is $3,000," she says, noting they have room for about 18 teams.

The evening will pit participating teams against one another in several rounds of trivia games encompassing a range of topics. It will be led by an experienced Quiz Master, Human notes.

"The questions cover a huge spectrum," she says, stressing everyone is sure to have at least a few topics they're well-versed in.

The winners will get bragging

Registration is $200 for a table of four to eight players. Email winnerfr@gmail.com or call 204-332-9418 to sign-up. Deadline to register is April 13.

Snacks and beverages will be provided free of charge.

All funds raised go to support the free early childhood education sessions the WFRC offers local families.

"It all goes towards just more programming," Human says. "We always fill up really quick so we want to be able to offer more programs to the community."

Okello joins Morden-Winkler nomination race

Changes Conservative bid from federal to provincial nomination

By Ashleigh Viveiros

A second candidate running for the Conservative Party of Canada nomination in Portage-Lisgar has changed their bid to focus on provincial politics instead.

Josh Okello announced last week he is leaving the federal nomination race to instead run for the Conservative Party of Manitoba nomination in Morden-Winkler.

The announcement comes on the heels of Morden's Liz Reimer doing the same.

Okello says his decision to do so was influenced by the urging of supporters he's connected with across the region in recent weeks.

"It reminds me of a Latin phrase, vox populi, vox dei: the voice of the people is the voice of God," he says.

"Almost everyone I've been talking to about my platform, what I stand for, what I would like to work on within the community, has been directing me to focus on provincial politics, because that way I stand a better chance of impacting our communities positively."

Okello's platform includes a passion for improving things like local infrastructure, health care services, affordable housing accessibility, and immigration programming—all things he feels he could perhaps focus better on as an MLA than an MP.

It's also a good way for him to cut his teeth in the political sphere, he says. If elected, this will be Okello's first political office.

"Without a track record, it is really hard to make it at the federal level," he says. "Having my feet right here within the provincial level will give me that chance to prove myself not only to my community but to this country as a whole as to what I can offer."

Okello immigrated to Canada from Kenya in 2009. He spent several years in Toronto before moving to Winkler, where he lives today with his wife and two kids.

Alzheimer Society looking for new board members

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The Alzheimer Society of Manitoba board of directors is looking for some new members.

Chair Ray Bisson explains they find themselves with three empty seats at the board table thanks to two members finishing their terms this spring and a third who had to step aside for personal reasons last year.

With their dementia-related educational and support programming being offered across Manitoba, they're casting a wide net in their search.

"What we want to have on our board is a gender balance, we want to have inclusivity, and we want to have diversity," Bisson says. "And we certainly want to have representation from the rural communities."

"We really want representation from various areas of expertise—some people from business, from health care, some people with a financial background," he continues. "If you have any experience in policy governance, that's also an asset."

A personal connection to Alzheimer's disease or a related dementia can also be a powerful motivator for a potential board member, Bisson says, but it's not a requirement, though an interest in giving back certainly is.

The successful candidate can be elected for a maximum of two consecutive three-year terms.

Bisson notes the board focuses its efforts on big-picture planning for the

Access CU donates $50K to help rebuild Morden Golf clubhouse

By Lorne Stelmach

The new clubhouse project of the Minnewasta Golf and Country Club got a big financial boost last week from Access Credit Union.

The $50,000 donation last Thursday was welcomed by head pro and general manager Greg Hesom.

"This is huge for Minnewasta ... we've had such fantastic community and business support from the area," he said. "We're really looking forward to being able to put those investments into the clubhouse."

Regional branch manager Candace Collins said Access Credit Union was happy to support the project.

"Access is wanting to be part of the communities that we're in, and we think it's an important project. We're happy to donate and just be part of our local community."

The donation helps move Minnewasta Golf and Country Club another step closer to getting started on the new clubhouse.

Minnewasta is working from a funding base of about $3 million through insurance coverage following the fire that destroyed the building in late 2021.

It had applied for funding through a provincial sports, arts and culture program with the hope of possibly securing $800,000 to get them to a goal of $5 million. Not landing that funding is a setback, but Hesom said it won't derail things.

"At the moment, we're just regrouping, seeing how that affects the project but still really trying to get a shovel into the ground here in spring."

Hesom estimated their fundraising has now reached the $1.5 million mark.

"The fundraising has been humbling and amazing from the community ... without that money, we wouldn't stand a chance of going forward in the path we're trying to go," he said.

"THE FUNDRAISING HAS BEEN HUMBLING AND AMAZING FROM THE COMMUNITY."

"What we're looking at now is trying to keep the footprint the same and obviously changing some of the structure ... we're exploring our options," said Hesom. "If we can target up to $1.8 million [for fundraising], I think that would be a really good return ... we just have to figure out what the final budget's going to be"

Minnewasta has been working with LM Architectural Group of Winnipeg on the design for the building. It will be built by Triple E Developments.

The new facility will include a restaurant, banquet room, and patio. Santa Lucia Pizza in the meantime will continue to manage the food and beverage services out of the snack shack.

Soil management assoc. holds annual meeting

By Lorne Stelmach

The benefit and value of shelterbelts was highlighted as a key part of the valuable work of the Stanley Soil Management Association at its annual meeting last week.

It continues to be a main emphasis for the organization along with tree sales, technician Richard Warkentin noted as the association met March 22 at the Pembina Threshermen's Museum.

The past year was again a busy one for both planting and sales, Warkentin shared.

"We planted about 15 miles of trees, and there's 8,728 trees that we planted over the 15 miles," he said. "And we do planting all over the place really, anywhere from Killarney to Arnaud, which was another project we had, which isn't in the district, but we do some custom work for people."

The association had a record year for tree sales especially.

"Last year actually was probably our biggest year where we actually sold over 24,000 trees to about 60 different customers throughout the region," Warkentine said.

"One of our biggest customers is Kroeker Farms," he noted. "Kroeker Farms alone probably would plant about seven or eight miles every year, so they ordered I would say about 5,000 trees from us. They're a good example of sustainable farming. I think most of their farming is probably organic by now."

There are many benefits to shelterbelts including serving as a wind break, aiding soil conservation, offering shelter for farmyards, and even mitigation of airborne contaminants.

There can be indirect benefits as well, such as water quality enhancement and aiding ground water recharge. Shelterbelts have also been shown to have agricultural benefits, Warkentine stressed, with one study estimating a corn crop increased by 12 per cent due to nearby trees.

Warkentin observed it is encouraging to see more businesses, growers, and even individuals recognizing all these benefits.

"People might say we see all these trees being taken down, but there's also trees being planted all the time.

"I would say particularly this area, the RM of Stanley particularly, is good for planting trees," he added, noting the municipality has offered a rebate for producers who plant trees.

The association also offers a number of other programs and services ranging from woodlot resource management plans to abandoned well sealing, which is done in partnership with the Pembina Valley Watershed

District.

They also continue monitoring for diffuse knapweed, a noxious weed that has long been only found in a small area west of Stanley Park.

"It's contained ... it is very close to eradication," Warkentine said. "We spend a bit of time monitoring and looking for the weed. We did spray last year. If you miss a weed or two, you can have 20,000 seeds happening quite quickly."

The annual meeting also heard an update on the projects of the Pembina Valley Watershed District Project, including new opportunities for funding.

Liz Karpinchick of Tone Ag Consulting presented on using organic farm practices in a conventional program agency, creating policies that are enacted by the chief executive officer and her staff. The society has an annual operating budget of approximately $3 million and a client base of 6,000.

The board meets six times a year in Winnipeg. Prior to the pandemic, board members would have to travel to the city to attend, but in the last few years remote attendance has become the norm as needed.

"So distance is not a barrier anymore, and it opens the door to have people from really anywhere in the province, which is exciting," says Bisson, who is himself from Roseau River.

That rural perspective is important, he stresses, since the society's client base extends well beyond Winnipeg. There are regional service offices located in the Interlake/Eastern, North Central, Parkland, South Central, South Eastman, and Westman regions of the province.

The deadline to apply is April 21. You can do so online at alzheimer.mb.ca.

Training for every “What If”

By Lori Penner

It’s a breezy, sunny day. All seems right with the world as a semi-trailer pulling a tanker loaded with anhydrous ammonia heads north down the highway.

Suddenly, a landscaper driving a dump truck turns into the semi’s path, side-swiping the tanker and sending it skidding and overturning in the ditch. The driver is trapped in the cab.

Meanwhile, the dump truck spins to a rest on the shoulder of the highway, with the driver still in the mangled cab.

A local resident calls 911, as a cloud of greenish white smoke quickly builds in the sky above.

Emergency personnel arrive at the scene and the fire department confirms that the big cloud is anhydrous ammonia—a deadly gas. EMS crews cannot access the wrecks due to lack of appropriate PPE, and residents in the nearby community are ordered to shelter in place, to avoid poisoning.

This was the simulated scenario facing 32 participants from municipalities across the region during a one-day training session in Altona on March 17.

The exercise was intended to teach them how to effectively run an emergency operations centre (EOC).

Tables were set up at the Millennium Exhibition Centre (MEC) for the two teams to analyze the situation and make decisions in the operations centre, and in a simulation room.

Each participant was appointed with a different role, and teams were given radios, telephones, and difficult situations. They had to make quick decisions, imagining all the lives that were at risk. Changes in the situation were reported to them every few minutes, and the teams had to respond accordingly.

They were also trained in how to communicate effectively with the public and the media, to provide important information without inciting panic.

The training day began with a morning of theory followed by the simulation in the afternoon, all facilitated by Shelley Napier, executive director for the Manitoba Association of Emergency Coordinators (MAMEC). The association represents over 90 municipalities and offers training programs and equipment and conferences.

“We were thrilled with the opportunity to come to Altona to do the teaching here. What a beautiful facility and beautiful community,” Napier said.

Under legislation, every community in Manitoba must have an emergency operations centre and an emergency program in place.

“This requires them to have a plan, train, and exercise,” Napier explained. “The hope is that the knowledge they gain from this training can be taken back to their communities, to make sure their residents are kept safer, their councils are more informed and involved, and they’re meeting a standard and requirement as well.”

Along with emergency coordinators, participants included members of community public works teams, chief administrative officers, firefighters, and police officers, representing 14 municipalities.

Each of these community roles, Napier said, are important components to effectively working through a local emergency situation.

It takes a team, she said, comparing each role to a different piece of a puzzle.

“They have to be identified. They have to be trained. And they have to have a place to work. And that’s the emergency operation centre. That’s the place where direction flows. And it flows because we work very closely with council or any council in an emergency.

“Having this room open allows us to support the emergency site, whether it needs resources: human resources, material resources, physical resources, whether they are looking for decision making, which we can get from council. But in order to do that, we have to teach that process, because this is a function of any emergency program.”

MAMEC training offers a wide variety of scenarios, to prepare for any “What if?” a community or municipality could face.

Napier considered the Altona exercise a big success.

“I think we certainly gave everyone involved a sense of how to function effectively during an emergency event. How to stay focused and keep your wits about you and know who to reach out to at the right time. This is about saving lives, and this training has proven itself, again and again.”

Former chief of police Perry Batchelor is the municipal emergency coordinator for the Town of Altona and represented the police in the scenario. This is his fourth course with MAMEC.

“It keeps you sharp,” he noted.

“There’s always new stuff that comes up and some new ideas and best practices, so it’s great networking.”

As an agricultural community, Batchelor says an emergency situation such as the one they enacted is very possible in Altona.

“There are lots of ag chemicals being transported on our roads.”

He said in this scenario, every aspect of their training would come into play, and when minutes count, it’s vital that each person at that table knows what to do.

“A situation constantly changes, and all those inputs, questions, and concerns need to be addressed quickly. That’s the benefit of exercises like this. It’s valuable to have them. It’s one of those things you train for, preparing for the worst and hoping for the best. You prepare for the worst-case scenario and hope that it is managed quickly and without loss of life.”

Batchelor says he knows every participant in the exercise walked away with important, life-saving knowledge.

“We really appreciate Shelley’s expertise and experience. It was a successful event, and vital for everyone involved.”

Another training event in Altona is in the works for this October.

"THE HOPE IS THAT THE KNOWLEDGE THEY GAIN FROM THIS TRAINING CAN BE TAKEN BACK TO THEIR COMMUNITIES ..."

Inflation a big influence on Rhineland budget planning

By Lori Penner

The Municipality of Rhineland has approved this year's budget, with $16.52 million in expenditures.

Finance committee chair Jake Heppner says this includes the $5.1 million they received through Disaster Financial Assistance (DFA) to cover last spring's flood damage.

Heppner notes that inflation definitely played a big role in their financial planning for 2023-2024.

"It was a huge factor in putting together our budget this year. When we started our process, we were using 8.1 per cent as inflationary factors, so when you use a number like that you can see how that impacts everything that you buy.

"We have equipment costs and upgrades, fuel prices, and wage increases to contend with," Heppner says. "About 52 percent of our budget is transportation. So, under that, we're projecting an increase of $30,000 in fuel costs alone, and you also have to consider the all-around increase in costs of keeping our roads and drainage in shape. So what we've put into reserves, we can already see is going to fall short."

He adds that a $243,000 increase in basket funding from the province will offset some of the effects of inflation and help reduce the rate charged to ratepayers.

Assessment values increased 10.83 per cent in the municipality, totaling $662,026,060. As a result, the mill rate applied to property tax calculations went down from 8.761 to 8.361. The combination of increased assessment and lower mill rate still translated into tax increases, for the most part, across Rhineland.

For residential tax, a property assessed at $215,000 will add an extra $40 to rural tax bills, $17 in Rosenfeld, and $165 in Plum Coulee.

For farm tax, a rural property assessed at $600,000 will see a tax increase of $66, and properties assessed at $450,000 in Rosenfeld and Plum Coulee will see increases of $52 and $499, respectively.

The exception is the L.U.D. of Gretna, where taxes for residential and commercial are decreasing 12.4 per cent as the result of a new special service levy taking effect.

"It's good news for Gretna, and maybe it will help to attract some more activity there," says Rhineland Reeve Don Wiebe.

Council has set aside $9.3 million for capital projects through the coming year. That includes the completion of Phase 1 and Phase 2 of the Priority Grain Roads project, for the lift station and public works/fire hall renovation in Plum Coulee, and the ongoing soap stock removal at the Altona/Rhineland Landfill.

About $1.7 million will go towards completing the grain tile on 31 roads in the municipality.

Proposed borrowing for this year includes $250,000 for an intersection upgrade at the Ag Park, as well as $1 million for the park's low pressure sewer system. The municipality will also be borrowing $195,000 for the public works shop and fire hall project in Plum Coulee.

"We got the tender for the addition to the fire hall. It's falling within our budget guidelines and it's going to go forward with as much energy as we can push it," says Wiebe. "That project has been on the shelf for too long, so this is very good news."

Council has also earmarked $177,000 for equipment purchases, including a water truck and an ATV.

The granting process is always a part of planning the annual budget for the municipality. For this year, public health and welfare grants have increased by 44 per cent, which includes $200,000 support to the Boundary Trails Health Centre expansion and a one-time grant of $200,000 to the Kid-die Sunshine Centre's new daycare facility project.

"We often have this debate at council: what's our municipal responsibility and what's our responsibility to other organizations?" Wiebe says. "They come to us, making a case for redeeming qualities and how this project will benefit the community, and funding from other government sources tends to be a bit skimpy.

"Obviously, the big one here is child-care. How that's going to be what we need for economic development, because some people can't take a job here because they can't find spaces for their kids. So, all that is connected, and we feel the obligation to help out.

"As long as we can help out for minimal amounts of money, then we are okay with it. But it's always a bit of a tension. We have to be mindful of our municipal mandates versus provincial mandates, such as health care."

drop-in centre he attended as a teen. The previous building was once the local police station.

"I was part of the original board that brought YFC to Altona with Jim Harms of Steinbach YFC. Over the years, the town has continued to support YFC. Today's staff and board have worked tirelessly, and you can see that. I wish you success in this great new place, and thanks for creating a positive and safe place for the young people in our community."

"Everything we set out to do has been led by God," said Falk. "Whether it was the fundraiser for a new van, or our BBQ trailer, or this, God has put people in our path that have been able to facilitate everything that we needed. And just look at what people have helped us achieve.

"This isn't just a job to us; this is a mission field. And the teens of our community are our mission. To be able to use this facility to build those relationships and walk alongside them and interject God into their lives, it's made it so much easier with a place like this. It's a great feeling to be where we are today.

"We appreciate everything the community has given us. It's fantastic. God has let us be the stewards of this place while we're here. God has led the way and we will continue following."

100-year-old shares her school day memories

By Lori Penner

"Just look at them. Aren't they so great?" said Sara Krueger, looking out at the crowd of six-year-olds.

Last week, Krueger was a special guest for this very curious group of Grade 1 students at École Elmwood School.

Having just turned 100 on March 16, they were eager to ask her some questions about what school was like when she was a little girl, and what it was like to be a century old.

Still spry, the Altona centenarian still drives a car and does yard work at her former farmyard east of town.

Her memories of growing up in the Kleinstadt School District are as sharp as ever.

"They didn't call it Grade 1 when I went to school," she told her little listeners. "They called it Beginners Class."

She recalled that there were about 50 students in the school, from kindergarten to Grade 8, all taught by one teacher.

"When we came in from the last recess, we were supposed to put our heads down on our desks and have a nap. Now would you be able to fall asleep just like that, right after you played outside? We were far too full of exercise to think about falling asleep."

It was suggested that maybe the teacher needed a nap, to which Krueger chuckled.

She went on to explain that if they didn't obey the teacher, or talked in class, they had to stand in the corner, with their nose pressed against the wall. "All the kids were watching us."

"Did you ever have to stand in the corner," they asked.

"Sorry to say, yes," Krueger sheepishly replied to a round of laughter.

The home she grew up in was attached to a barn, and had three rooms on the main floor, and three upstairs. She was the youngest of six children, with five older brothers.

"I used to just wish and pray that God would give me a sister," she said. "And then one day He did, when my brother got married."

As a child without a TV or video games, what did she do all day, the kids wanted to know.

"I had a doll and a carriage, and I had a cradle. But I had no sister to play with, so I treated my dogs and cats like my dolls. I dressed them with my doll clothes. But that didn't always work out very well."

What kind of food did she eat, was the next question.

"We had vegetables from the garden in the summertime. And we only had dessert on Sundays. And we would make our own ice cream. Sometimes we would go to town and get a cone, which only cost five cents. Oh, that tasted good."

Krueger recalled the simple Christmas treats they received, always saving one or two candies so they could brag about them in school.

She wasn't much of a reader until she finished school, she told them.

"The teacher had so many classes and taught every subject, so sometimes we didn't finish, and we had to do the rest of the work at home."

Her favourite school activity was spelling bees.

"We would choose two sides. Then the teacher would ask questions and the person who answered correctly could stay. If they didn't answer correctly, he had to go to the end of the line."

Krueger remembered how her teacher loved music and would teach them different songs. One song in particular stands out.

"We would sing a song about our district: 'Kleinstadt will shine tonight. Kleinstadt, when the sun goes down and the moon comes up, Kleinstadt will shine.'"

Her teacher was very kind, she said.

"He would come out and play at recess time with us. Recess would go a little longer then, and that was always a treat."

Sometimes recess could be held indoors because of the cold. But for the most part, the students had to be tough.

"Our winter clothes weren't as nice as the ones they have now. I wore two thin coats and a cap and woolen stockings. Ladies never wore pants in those days. In winter we went by horse and sleigh, and when we got there, we would turn the horse around and send it back home without a driver. Our teacher lived right at the back of the school, so he warmed the school up for us each morning before we got there."

Sara Krueger, 100 years young, stopped by École Elmwood School to chat with Gr. 1 students about her own time in school way back when. Above: Krueger brought along an old pair of glasses she wore as a child to show the kids.

Krueger finished her visit by showing the students a few tools her mother used to use in the kitchen: a small wooden box with a little wooden plunger, used to make a pound of butter, and a metal iron she used to heat up on the stove.

She also showed them a pair of her old glasses. After a loud, collective, "Thank you, Grandma Krueger" the kids headed out to recess.

Seeing so many students together in one room reminded her of her own school days long ago, Krueger said.

"It was such a joy to see them all."

Pilot Mound & District Museum opens in new, larger space

By Lorne Stelmach

The Pilot Mound and District Museum has been a fixture in the community since 1954, but it now has a new lease on life with a larger location.

A grand re-opening Saturday afternoon celebrated the completion of work on its new home in the Pilot Mound Millennium Complex.

The location seemed like a good fit for the museum, with the complex already serving as a real hub for the community given that it includes not only the rink and curling club but also a day care, movie theatre, and hockey academy.

"It was the easiest and the best choice ... it just took a bit of time," said museum spokesperson Heather Brewster, noting there were some people who needed some convincing it was the right place for the museum.

"Being a multi-use building, it's kind of neat that there is so much going on in here," she said, pointing to how the museum is now right next door to the theatre. "Even on Thursdays, if I'm up here, they're getting the movie ready and you can hear the movie trailers. We share the interior wall; the back wall of the museum is the interior side wall of the movie theatre."

The museum has come a long way from its start as what was to be a temporary display.

"It originally started just as a community display for when the town turned 50 in 1954, and it just turned into an actual museum because that whole display went over very well," explained Brewster.

"It was originally in the basement of the town office and library for a very long time up until about 10 years ago when it closed and in 2018 we started building on the second floor of the Pilot Mound Millennium Complex."

It now offers them a larger and more wide open space to feature more artifacts and displays that allow visitors to explore the origins of the area and gain a deeper appreciation of the lives of local settlers.

Brewster sees it serving as a destination for history buffs and an invaluable educational resource for students.

"We went from approximately 915 sq. ft. to just a little over 2,300 sq. ft. That's allowed us to have a separate office, which we never had before, as well as storage," she said. "It also allowed us to create what will be a phase two with an archive room."

"Over the year, we have become the place to put pictures and scrapbooks and even minutes from different organizations ... things that nobody knew what to do with," Brewster continued. "That will be really nice to have a community archive ... you just never know what people might be looking for at any given time.

"The other advantage is accessibility. There's an elevator now ... before in the basement, we had two flights of stairs to come down, so that just ruled out anybody with a wheelchair or a walker or even a young mom with a stroller.

"We were able to curate a lot of new different displays areas," said Brewster. "We've had to develop some display panels that can tell some history, like the geology. We had a geologist from the Manitoba government very nicely explain what the mound is through the glacial push.

"These are great stories, but we didn't have anything to go with it, so we created mound moments ... now we can tell you these little stories," she said. "I'm really excited about this ... it was exciting to get this all done."

Local projects receive provincial funding

By Ashleigh Viveiros

A number of local arts and sports projects have received a welcome funding boost from the provincial government.

The province earlier this month announced the winners of more than $50 million in funding from the The Arts, Culture and Sport in Community (ACSC) fund.

"Our government recognizes the critical role Manitoba's community facilities play in the development of our children and youth, while also supporting the growth of our communities and economy," Premier Heather Stefanson said. "We know that stronger communities start with a foundation of local arts, culture and sporting initiatives that foster a sense of belonging today and for generations to come.

"Our government is proud to provide this historic investment to support shovel-ready community-led projects that will have a positive and lasting impact on communities all across the province."

A total of 402 arts, culture, and sports initiatives received funding, including five in our area.

The South Central Regional Library is getting $25,000 for capital improvements at its Manitou branch and $12,000 for renovations in Miami.

Director of library services Cathy Ching says the funds will go a long way indeed toward improving the Manitou branch with new flooring, a new circulation desk, and an outdoor book drop.

"Right now they're using a Rubbermaid container," she shares. "All of our other branches have an outside book drop, but Manitou never has. So they'll be joining the rest of our ranks with helping our patrons get their books back to us more easily."

Ching anticipates the library may need to shut down for about a week this summer to complete the renovations.

In Miami, the funds will be used for several branch improvements.

"There's a few things that need some tweaking," Ching says. "We're going to move the desk a bit, they're going to put in a new book drop, do some reordering so we can move the photocopier to a less intrusive place, and put up some shelving and possibly a wind break for the back door."

Candlewick Productions in Morden is receiving $16,350 for repairs and upgrades of the Kenmor Theatre.

There are certainly no shortage of projects to tackle in the 73-year-old theatre, says Candlewick's Richard Klassen.

"There are a bunch of little projects we've wanted to work on in the theatre," he says, explaining funds will be used for things like improving the heating and cooling system in the foyer, replacing worn carpeting throughout, and addressing water seepage in the basement. "And then there's a

Ste. Anne wins SEMHL championship

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The Ste. Anne Aces came from behind to win the 71st annual South Eastern Manitoba Hockey League championship over the weekend.

Our own Morden Bombers had been leading the series 3-0 before the Aces managed to flip the script in game four with a 6-4 win.

They then took game five 9-3 last Tuesday night in Morden. Scoring for the home team were Andrew Clark, Adam Hughesman, and Tyler Peers. Reed Peters backstopped the Bombers' net, making 52 saves as Ste. Anne outshot Morden 61-43.

Wednesday night's game six win in Ste. Anne went to overtime for a decision.

Morden had a firm hold on the lead in the opening period, with Mike Rey scoring twice and Cole Penner once to make it 3-1 heading into intermission.

After a scoreless middle frame, though, the Aces got the two they needed to tie it at 3-3 and send things into overtime.

It took nearly 17 minutes, then, for Ste. Anne to break the deadlock for the 4-3 OT win.

Peters was in net for Morden once again. He made 48 saves off 52 shots. His teammates fired 39 the other way.

That tied the series at three games each and forced a decisive game seven in Morden Saturday night.

Jaden Townsend drew first blood six minutes in but Ste. Anne returned the favour to end the first period tied at 1-1.

The Morden Bombers battled hard but ultimately fell to the Ste. Anne Aces in the South Eastern Manitoba Hockey League championship final last week. Ste. Anne took game five (above) 9-3 in Morden and then game six at home 4-3 to tie the series 3-3 before sweeping games six and seven to win it all.

The Aces then pulled ahead in the second, which saw Morden's Hughesman score once in between two Ste. Anne goals.

The 3-2 score held until the game's final five minutes, when Ste. Anne's Brenden Walker managed to make it 4-2 at 15:44.

A Jory Mullin goal for the Bombers closed the gap once again in the final minute and Morden pulled their goalie for the extra man in a bid to try and catch up. It was to no avail, with Walker putting the final nail in with an empty-net goal to give the Aces the win 5-3 and the championship—Ste. Anne's first—four games to three.

The Aces will now play either Minnedosa or Miniota/Elkhorn for the Manitoba Senior A Championship.

WILD PLAYER HONOURED

The league announced on Monday that the Red River Wild's Brenden Heppner has been selected as the recipient of the 2023 Dale Rempel Person of the Year Award.

"Brenden has become a huge part of local fundraising in the Morris-St Jean area and brings a contagious energy to the Wild and any committees he sits on," the league said, noting Heppner is involved in numerous local sports and philanthropic causes. "He was also a big part in helping the Wild in joining the SEMHL. He had his hands in fundraising and player recruitment."

Twisters and Hawks might go the distance

By Lorne Stelmach

It was now down to a best of three for the Pembina Valley Twisters this week in their MMJHL quarter-final.

The series between the Twisters and the Charleswood Hawks was even at two games apiece after last weekend.

It has been a back and forth battle with the Hawks taking game one 5-2, the Twisters winning game two 3-2, Charleswood taking game 3-1, and Pembina Valley winning game four

3-2

The Hawks led 2-1 and 3-2 at the intermissions before putting game one away in the third last Tuesday with a powerplay marker and then an empty net goal.

Scoring for the Twisters were Slade Sotheran and Ryan Orchard. Logan Enns made 28 saves off 33 shots. His teammates fired the same number the other way

U15 Flyers win league, provincials

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The Pembina Central Flyers U15 AA team wrapped up what was already a stellar season of hockey by clinching not just the league banner but the provincial one as well.

"They're a pretty amazing group of boys," says co-coach Troy Ehnes. "They had quite a wonderful year."

The Flyers were 21-2-1 in league play, which won them first place by one point.

"It's a competitive league," Ehnes says. "It's a nine team league that was created five or six years ago to give some better players a place to play that didn't make our AAA programs."

The Flyers are one of three teams representing the Pembina Valley in the league.

"We have the Twisters out of Morris, the Rockets west out of Holland, and then us the Flyers, which is Winkler, Morden, Carman," Ehnes explains.

The Flyers found themselves going up against those same local teams alongside teams from elsewhere in Manitoba at the provincial championship in Winkler earlier this month.

They downed the Eastman Central Snipers and the Pembina West Rockets 3-0 and 3-2, respectively, in the round robin and then crushed the Snipers in the semi-final 6-0.

The championship final pitted the Flyers against the Southwest Jets. They skated away with a 2-1 win for the banner.

Ehnes notes he came out of retirement to help coach this team, inspired by the heart and dedication he saw out on the ice from the boys.

"They're probably one of the better teams I've coached in all my 37 years of coaching because the team was so balanced," he says. "You could put any line out on the power play—you didn't have to mix players together.

"And they're probably one of the best teams for work ethic at practice. They showed up, worked hard, wanted to learn every practice."

Ehnes expects a number of players will move up to AAA hockey next season.

"It's really given them a chance to hone their skills," he says. "They're going to move up the ladder."

Special teams made the difference in game two Thursday with the Twisters connecting for a powerplay goal and a shorthanded marker.

Zander Carels, Riley Goertzen, and Alex Vandenyze scored for Pembina Valley while Enns made 33 saves as the Twisters outshot the Hawks 37-35.

Derek Wiebe's first period power play goal was all the Twisters could manage in game three Saturday as they were shutdown the rest of the way despite outshooting the Hawks 35-31. Enns made 28 saves, with Charleswood sealing the win with an empty net marker.

Pembina Valley then trailed 5-3 after two periods Sunday but completed the third period comeback with two goals within the last two minutes, including the winner with just 24 seconds remaining.

Merek Degraeve scored twice while singles came in from Wiebe, Vandenyze, Nico Vigier, and Mike Heppner.

Shots on goal were 33-19 in favour of Pembina Valley. Enns made 14 saves.

Game five was scheduled for Tuesday night in Charleswood. Results were not available at press time. Game six is in Morris Thursday. Game seven, if needed, is back in Winnipeg Saturday.

Flyers-Pistons series tied at 1-1

By Ashleigh Viveiros

The Winkler Flyers and the Steinbach Pistons finished the MJHL regular season with just seven points separating them—Steinbach in second place and Winkler in third—and the first week of playoff action continued to be a close call.

Winkler took game one of the first round of the MGEU East Division playoffs with a tense 5-4 OT win in Steinbach Friday night.

The game was tied at 1-1 after 20 minutes, with Xyon Kiemeney getting Winkler on the board less than two minutes in.

Zach Nicolas then scored 40 seconds into the second to re-take the lead for the Flyers, only to have Steinbach score twice that period to do the same.

Another early goal for Winkler came in the third, this time from Gavin Waltz, to tie things at 3-3.

The lead proved short-lived, as the Pistons pulled ahead again at 2:54.

Nicolas' second goal of the night at 16:08 evened things out again and sent the two teams into overtime.

There, Jayce Legaarden fired home the game-winner two minutes in.

The Flyers' celebration over stealing an at-home game from Steinbach didn't last long, as the Pistons returned the favour Friday night in Winkler.

The home team found themselves playing catchup from the get-go, with Steinbach scoring first at 3:38 and again at 19:57. In between, Nicholas McKee got Winkler on the board.

Another goal in the second gave the visitors a 3-1 lead heading into the final 20 minutes. Dalton Andrew managed to score at 17:20, but that was the last time Winkler found the back of the net, giving Steinbach the win 3-2.

Games three and five are in Steinbach Wednesday and Friday night. Games four and six are in Winkler Thursday and Sunday.

Access CU makes Manitoba's Top Employers list

By Voice staff

For the ninth year in a row, Access Credit Union has been named one of Manitoba's top employers by the editors of Canada's Top 100 Employers.

The list, which has been compiled for 17 years in partnership with the Winnipeg Free Press, recognizes the Manitoba employers that lead their industries in offering exceptional places to work.

"Top employers in Manitoba are raising the bar in their support of local community groups to guarantee maximum impact," says Richard Yerema, executive editor at the Canada's Top 100 Employers project. "Through programs like matching charitable donations by employees and providing paid time off to volunteer (often with no formal maximums), this year's winners offer staff the ability to take action and really make a difference."

Access Credit Union was singled out for its focus on community development.

"Access Credit Union established a special investment committee responsible to review donation requests from local charities," the project's editors said in a news release. "The company also provides paid time off to volunteer in the community and matches employee donations to charitable organizations."

For its part, Access CU says it works hard to be a workplace of choice in Manitoba. That includes creating a culture to maintain a healthy work-life balance.

"My job is to create an environment where people can excel. I find if people are empowered to excel, they will," says president and CEO Larry Davey. "We spend a great deal of time on leadership training and getting the staff flow as frictionless as possible. I find that if staff are empowered and know they are trusted, they are that much more engaged."

Other benefits of working at Access, the financial institution shares, include paid training and continuing education, flexible hours and work locations, matched pension plans, competitive salaries, tuition subsidies, a fully paid health plan and family coverage, and the opportunity to contribute to the community.

RECORD-BREAKING CASH BACK

Access CU also announced last week that it will be returning $13.5 million to its members via its Member Rewards profit-sharing program.

It's a record-breaking amount for the financial institution, which last summer merged with the Noventis and Sunova credit unions.

"We are proud to be in a position where we are able to pay Member Rewards as a way of saying thank you to our loyal members," board chair Kevin Beresford said. "This year marks the biggest payout in our history and fulfills our core commitment to strengthen our profit-sharing program."

number of small fix-its and facility upgrades just to keep things running smoothly.

"It's been great to see this funding go to the arts and also local sports projects too," Klassen notes. "It's really a good shot in the arm for everybody."

Receiving $25,000 for lighting and sound upgrades is the Manitou Opera House Foundation.

Board treasurer Al Thorleifson says the facility's existing lighting system has really begun to show its age.

"We've been having difficult finding parts for some of those older lights," he says. "They were just getting archaic and so when something would break or we'd need a bulb, we'd find out they don't make them anymore."

With the ACSC grant, an $8,000 grant from Efficiency Manitoba, and other donations, the opera house board intends to put in a new, state-of-the-art lighting and sound system.

"We're still looking for about $6,000 to complete fundraising," Thorleifson says, inviting those interested in supporting the project to contact them.

The hope is to have the new systems in place later this year.

"Having a good product, part of it is making sure we have the lighting and sound systems that are going to enhance the shows that we present," Thorleifson says.

Finally, the Altona Curling Club received $10,000 for its over house video project.

Club reps declined to comment at press time as they await further details of the grant funding from the province.

OBITUARY

Elma Bergen (nee Schmidt)
1929 - 2023

Elma Bergen was born to Henry P. and Susanna Schmidt on August 13, 1929 in the district of Schoenau, close to Altona. She was the latter of twin girls, and the youngest of six siblings. In her early teens, the family moved to New Hope where she finished grade school. In April 1950, she was baptized upon the confession of her faith by the Bishop of the Sommerfeld Mennonite Church and received as a member. On October 18, 1952, she married Jacob G. Bergen of the Ruderweide district. At that time, she also joined the Ruderweide Mennonite Church. Eight children were born to them: five sons and three daughters. The youngest two daughters, Joanna and Jeanette died at birth in March 1969.

She was also predeceased by her parents, Henry P and Susanna Schmidt and her siblings: Susie (Corny), Jacob (Anne), Eva (Pete), Henry and her twin sister, Dora, Susie and Jake Thiessen, Neta and Frank Thiessen, Anne Bergen, Jake Friesen, Frank Bergen and Helena Bergen.

Left to cherish her memory are five sons and one daughter: Ivan (Karen) of Winkler, Ken (Lois) of Winkler, Ron (Carol) of Winnipeg, Melvin (Karen) of Calgary, Harold (Sharon) of Winnipeg, Amanda (Andy) of Cypress River and 16 grandchildren: Casey (Cam), Matt, Krista (Marty), Kendra (Michael), Kara (Dwayne), Kim (James), Matthew (Rachael), Danae (Marty), Tyler, Raine (Kaite), Brittany (Scott), Evan (Tedi), Caleb, Ayla, Quinn (Sandy), Keegan (Nancy) and 25 great-grandchildren. She is also survived by in-laws, Linda Schmidt, John Neufeld, Sara Friesen, Mary and Ernest Lescheid, Gertrude and Helmut Friesen and many nieces and nephews.

Following their wedding in 1952, Grandma and Grandpa moved to Portage la Prairie where they lived until the spring of 1954. They relocated to Ruderweide where they worked on several farms. Then in 1958 they decided to move back to Portage la Prairie. Grandma's life was that of a busy mother. Their five boys were born within seven years of each other, followed by a daughter six years later. She quickly learned how to run an efficient home. She kept a clean house but preferred her work out of doors. This was the work that she was most accustomed to growing up on the farm. Grandma was a woman that wasn't afraid of work. Along with her household responsibilities and volunteering roles, she had a variety of jobs both in Portage and in Morden where they relocated to in 1972. She fostered children, worked at preparing and setting up for meals at Manitoba School. She worked in the Portage Thrift Store and Blue Jean Shop, and in housekeeping at Bethel Hospital in Winkler, Eden and Salem Home, also at the Maple Leaf School and Morden School Division Office. Many of her life long friendships were established through Grandma and Grandpa's involvement in the Portage EMC Church where she was involved in Sunday School, Five Day Clubs and DVBS.

When Grandma and Grandpa moved to Winkler in 1991, Grandma retired. Her biggest goal in her working career was making enough money to purchase a piano. She had a love for making music, a gift that few people outside of her family ever got to enjoy. She couldn't read music, but she played many instruments by ear. The guitar, banjo, accordion, piano and the organ. Until the day that she went into the hospital, you could hear her play the little electric organ at the front door, belting out a tune.

When Grandpa suffered his strokes, Grandma became his primary caregiver. Her strength and resolve served her well. Even when he was moved across the street to Salem Home, Grandma would bring him home for the day. When it became obvious that his time here on earth was limited, an early 50th anniversary celebration was planned. Ten days after the celebration (October 10, 2002) Grandpa passed away. Grandma loved him dearly and mourned his passing deeply. She would often say "I had such a good man, why would I want another?" On the 15th of March at 1 a.m., grandma called Dad (Ken). He took her to the hospital. She was admitted, and it was quickly realized that her heart issues had become more serious than any of us knew. She was moved to palliative care and in just a few short days, she became unresponsive. She quietly slipped into glory on Sunday, March 19th at 10:00 a.m. Grandma, you will be missed. We love you.

Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all the earth!
Make a loud noise, and rejoice, and sing praise!
Psalms 98:4

A private family service was held on Thursday, March 23, 2023 at Grace Mennonite Church with interment prior at the Rudnerweide Cemetery.

Donations may be made in Elma's memory to the charity of your choice.

OBITUARY

Dorothy Susan Pauls
(nee Sawatzky)
1927 - 2023

We mourn deeply the passing of Dorothy Susan Pauls (nee Sawatzky) on Monday, March 6, 2023 in St. Boniface Hospital at the age of 95.

Dorothy was born on August 17, 1927 in Morden, Manitoba, the third child in a family of eight children. She attended Morden Maple Leaf School for six years, after which she stayed at home to help with cooking and childcare. Growing up, Dorothy displayed a keen interest in making things. A ball of wool was continually knitted, unraveled and knitted again; and a first pair of high heels were designed and crafted out of wood. Later she received sewing lessons, and a lifetime of sewing projects followed. If times were tough, discarded men's suits were taken apart and re-tailored as women's suits.

As a young girl, Dorothy shared with her mother a desire to be a good person and to become a Christian. During this conversation, she accepted Jesus Christ as her personal savior. Later she would be baptized upon the confession of her faith in the Morden Berghthaler Mennonite Church. As a youth, she attended Sunday School, served as secretary for the youth group (Jugendverein), and sang in the church choir.

It was in this church setting that Dorothy met and married Jacob Pauls, forging a union that lasted 70 years. Together they farmed, entered church ministry, raised a family, and made studies and travel a way of life. In the course of many moves, Jake and Dorothy had two new houses built, and Dorothy sewed curtains and décor for both.

Dorothy played a supportive role in her husband's work by accompanying him on visitations, hosting many work related visitors and managing Jake's sartorial needs, especially for travel. Dorothy also participated in much of the travel related to Jake's work. Together they attended two European world conferences, several Canadian and American conferences, two study tours of the Middle East and finally an Asian and an African trip in preparation for the world conference in Winnipeg in 1990. While Dorothy enjoyed travelling abroad, she appreciated most of all the trips taken with the family to the mountains and the east coast.

During retirement, Dorothy did more of that with which she was familiar, homemaking, sewing and traveling. She dearly loved spending time with her young grandsons, Simon and Rowan, but advancing old age made that increasingly difficult. A serious fall in April 2022 resulted in Dorothy taking up care home residency. This past February she suffered another fall from which she would not recover. Peacefully she surrendered to the call of her Lord to leave loved ones behind and return to her spiritual home.

Dorothy will be lovingly remembered by her husband, Jacob F. Pauls; her children, Vera Pauls and Gerald Pauls, her grandsons, Simon Pauls and Rowan Braun; her siblings and in-laws, Verna (Sawatzky) Enns, Leona (Penner) Sawatzky, Ron Sawatzky, Harvey and Margaret (Penner) Sawatzky; and many nieces and nephews and their families.

Dorothy was predeceased by her parents, David R. and Marie (Klaassen) Sawatzky; an infant son Vernon James (stillborn); a daughter-in-law, Lora Braun; siblings and in-laws, Abe Enns, Rudy and Alma (Janzen) Sawatzky, Art Sawatzky, Henry and Anne Marie (Sawatzky) Bock, Anne (Martens) Sawatzky, Pearl Sawatzky; as well as a niece and two nephews.

A funeral service for Dorothy was held at Bethel Mennonite Church in Winnipeg on Monday, March 13, followed by interment at Southside Cemetery in Morden.

Altona Curling Club honours winners and supporters

By Lori Penner

The Altona Curling Club (ACC) hosted their club finals and wind-up on March 23. "We had lots to celebrate this season," says executive member Quinn Hildebrand. "Our numbers were up substantially. We had 14 men's teams, seven women's teams, 36 junior curlers, 24 little rockers and 16 stick curlers."

This year's award winners included:

- Ladies Club Champions: Team Laura Dueck.
- Ladies Grand Aggregate: Team Kristin Opocensky.
- Men's Club Champion: Team Vic Klassen.
- Men's Grand Aggregate: Team Harold Sawatzky.

The ACC also recognized teams who had tremendous seasons on the provincial and national stage.

Banners were presented for Team Jennifer

Jones for winning the Manitoba Women's Championship and being the national Scot-ties runner-ups, as well as Team Wahl for winning the Manitoba Canada Games Trials and the U18 Women's Championships.

"These banners and names will be proudly displayed in our club indefinitely," Hildebrand said. "We continue to be proud of both teams' achievements and your representation of our club and community."

Their final recognition was for retired ice maker and club manager Terry Peters.

"Terry's 25-year dedication and service to our club is hard to replace," Hildebrand says.

In his honour, the club has established the Terry Peters Junior Curling Legacy Fund, with a $5,000 contribution to the fund from the proceeds of the U18 provincials.

A plaque was also dedicated to Peters for his many years of service. It will be displayed for all to see at the curling club.

"It's great. I definitely appreciate the recognition," Peters says. "The Legacy Fund is also important. A lot of junior curlers may not use it. For those that do, like the Wahl Team and the Zacharias Team, this certainly will enable them to do more to advance their careers."

"Training is expensive. You're gone a lot of weekends and renting training ice. It's not like it used to be where you slap on a pair of shoes and grab a broom and you go curl. You have to take it to another level, and that level wasn't even there when I started curling."

Hildebrand wants to thank everyone for another great season.

"One last shout out to our ice installers, Alex and Collin, and our season-long ice crew team of Charles, Terrell and Al; we can't play the game without you," she said. "Enjoy the spring and summer and stay tuned for registration information in late September 2023."

Ask the Money Lady

Dear Money Lady Readers: Why are so many Canadians still struggling with money when we have such a large banking industry that says it wants to help us?

Today Canada is dominated by five large banks, that now control 91% of the entire Canadian financial service industry, with approximately $4 Trillion in assets. The Royal Bank's recent purchase of HSBC only amplifies this fact. Many may think that there are larger industries in Canada, however as of 2021 the financial sector is now the largest industry in terms of employment in Canada. There now is so much information out there, it's hard to know if someone is trying to truly help you or sell you something that is necessary for them to meet their sales quota. Because of this, I want to provide my readers with a basic financial plan strategy. One that every Canadian can fit into their life and we will break it into four stages. Use it as a guideline - something to work towards. Guaranteed, if done as presented, it will reduce the financial uncertainty that impact your life, and help you reach retirement debt free and wealthy.

Stage 1: In your 20's you will have debt—either consumer and/or school debt. This is the time to begin saving and establishing good credit so that you can borrow from the banks in the future. You don't want to pay higher lending rates simply because you continually overindulge or can't pay your bills on time. Open a tax-free savings account (TFSA) and have 15% of your paycheque taken out of your bank account the same day that you get paid (setup automatically with your bank). Once the TFSA is maxed, open a RSP account and do the same. TIP: Invest in ETF's (exchange traded funds) that follow an index such as the S&P 500 or the Nasdaq Composite. Don't have too much invested domestically. Historically, the US stock market has always outperformed all others.

Stage 2: Now in your 30's you will most likely be working fulltime and it is imperative that you continue your savings regime as in Stage 1. Always take 15% off the top of your paycheque to be first put in your TFSA and then into your RSP. If you are lucky enough to hit your maximum RSP contribution limit, any other savings should go into a non-registered investment account. In this decade you want to get into the real estate market. You may need to buy a home with friends or family or even take in boarders to help make ends meet. I know it will be a stretch for most young Canadians, but it is an absolute necessity to give you more options for the future. You should have a Will + two Power of Attorney (medical direction + assets) and review your insurance needs at this stage.

Stage 3: This is the phase that combines your 40's and 50's and it's most likely when you will have your maximum earning potential. Always keep building on the foundation that you created in Stage 1 (15% towards TFSA, RSP, non-registered accounts). At this point you now must work to eliminate debt. You may have upgraded your home, have a second home, started a business or be thinking of your children's education. All these added expenses will have a huge impact on your income – but never succumb to reducing your 15% savings routine. During your 50's you must work at eliminating all debt. Why not refinance into a new mortgage with the amortization set to the year you plan to retire. Setup this way – you're guaranteed to have zero debt at retirement.

Stage 4: This phase starts in your 60's and goes to your 90's. You will want to start simplifying your lifestyle and your commitments especially as you age. Stage 1 and 2 were all about building your life and acquiring "things" to make you happy. In this stage you must now start the "big purge," reduce the clutter, downsize or right-size your residence to eliminate any remaining debts, lower expenses and add more funds to your retirement savings. In your 60's it is a good idea to update your Will and POAs. In your 70's to 90's, make sure you have a plan to fill your days if you have stopped working and always work towards improving your health, plus keep active – both mentally and physically.

Good Luck & Best Wishes,

Christine Ibbotson
